

DIXMUDE DECLARED LOST AT SEA

REBELS ROUTED IN JALISCO, IS DECLARATION

Heavy Losses Are Suffered by Revolutionary Troops
Under Gen. Estrada

ORREGON IN FIELD

Said Directing Operations—
West Coast Said Almost Cleared of Rebels

Jaurez, Mexico, Dec. 28.—(By the A. P.)—Successful operations of the Mexican troops in Guerrero and the northern part of Jalisco were reported in the latest advices reaching Jaurez. Revolutionary troops were routed in northern Jalisco while trying to reach the army of Gen. Enrique Estrada and suffered heavy losses according to word to the Mexican consul at Nogales.

General Maganow, General Carpio, and the latter's brother, Jose Carpio, were killed in action, the report said. The advance of the rebel forces at Guadalajara is continuing successfully, the advices added, and the federals now control the west coast with the exception of a small port. The federals were victorious in Guerrero routing the insurrectionists who left many dead, Consul Ruiz at El Paso was informed. President Obregon is personally directing operations against Gen. Estrada in the state of Guanajuato and has ordered a general advance against the rebel positions near Guadalajara, capital of Jalisco, Consul Ruiz was advised.

APPROVE CONVENTION

Mexico City, Dec. 28.—(By the A. P.)—The Mexican senate today ratified the special United States Mexican claims convention by a vote of 42 to 5. The general claims convention was approved as a whole, 5 against one.

The sessions then adjourned, leaving the discussion of article of the general convention until another session.

DECISIVE BATTLE NEAR

Mexico City, Dec. 28.—A decisive battle is expected to be fought on the Jalisco front according to reports from Lapedad Cabadas. President Obregon established his headquarters at this place following the first day's advance against Guadalajara. Yurecaro was occupied by federal forces without the firing of a shot.

CLAIM SUCCESSES

Vera Cruz, Dec. 28.—(By the A. P.)—Almost coincident with news of the victory of the rebel troops under General R. Buena over federal forces commanded by General L. Cardenas in a battle near Irapuato, insurgent headquarters here received word that the Obregonist forces had abandoned the city of Puebla from which the rebels withdrew "for strategic reasons" several days ago.

The decision of the federals to evacuate Puebla, it was said, was taken in consequence of the defeat the Loyalists sustained at a railway town about 60 miles to the north. Mexican troops advancing over the railway line in accordance with the general plan to prevent General Obregon from moving troops at Puebla and Apizaco to the western front met and defeated federal forces from the latter town. It is reported, the victory being "effected by the defection of the major part of the federals."

Thus, it appeared here, that the rebels have gained important ground on both western and Vera Cruz fronts. They are also said to have occupied Manzanillo, an important west coast port in Colima.

General Estrada, commander of the revolutionary forces in western Mexico, reports that General Buena has only completely routed the 2,000 fed- erals under General Cardenas, but made prisoners of Cardenas and 500 of his men and captured about 1,000 rifles.

MAKE PUBLIC

MELLON'S BILL

Washington, Dec. 28.—Reversing its previous policy the house ways and means committee today made public the new revenue bill in the form it was sent out to the capital by Secretary Mellon.

MORATORIUM REQUESTED

Mitchell, S. D., Dec. 28.—A farmer moratorium for South Dakota which has been made the principal plank in the candidacy of Tom Ayres, proposed by the majority of the Farmer-Labor proposal meeting at Pierre, Dec. 4, for United States senator, was rejected by the Davison county Farmer-Labor proposal meeting here.

THEY ALL HAVE 'EM

John D. Rockefeller has deserted his northern home and now is in sunny Florida, at Ormond Beach. He has given a dime to about every one in town, and here he is shown presenting one to Mrs. Charles F. Langer of New York City. They are intended as keepsakes from the oil king.

GRAIN GRADE COURSES WILL BE OFFERED

Agricultural College Plans Instruction During Entire Short Course Period

Fargo, N. D., Dec. 28.—Grain grading and elevator management courses will be given at the North Dakota Agricultural college during the entire period for which the short course in agriculture extends, announces C. B. Waldron, dean of the school of agriculture at the college.

"The other courses such as dairying, poultry, farm management and the rest of the curricula will last but for one week," states Mr. Waldron, "but the course in grain grading will be continued throughout the period of January 1 to March 1."

Samples of grain will be available for judging and the work of this part of the course will be chiefly to learn how to judge comparative samples of grain and to know what to look for. Elevators of the state, farmers and the state grain department will furnish the samples to be judged. The course in seed analysis will consist partly in the study of weed seeds.

In addition instruction will be given in elevator management, elevator accounting, commercial arithmetic and commercial law. The two latter courses will be general in scope but especially adaptable to those who are engaged in elevator work or grain judging.

The full schedule for the course follows: 8:00 to 9:00, Elective 9:00 to 12:00, Grain Grading and Elevator Management, Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, Agricultural Building, Room 200. 1:15 to 2:05, Commercial Arithmetic or Commercial Law, Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, Science Building, Room 207 or 213. 2:05 to 2:45, Accounting, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, Agricultural Building, Room 200; Seed Analysis, Monday and Tuesday, Science Building, Room 102.

Thus, it appeared here, that the rebels have gained important ground on both western and Vera Cruz fronts. They are also said to have occupied Manzanillo, an important west coast port in Colima.

FINE CALENDAR IS ISSUED

The picture of "Red Tomahawk," who killed Sitting Bull on December 18, 1890 at Grand River S. D., adorns a handsome calendar being distributed by the Bismarck Bank. The picture of Red Tomahawk was chosen not only because it is an example of excellent work by the photographer, F. B. Fiske of Ft. Yates, but because of his place in the history of the Northwest. Red Tomahawk's profile also adorns the road markers adopted by the highway commission, for roads in North Dakota because "he made the roads safe for white men to travel."

REDUCE AUTO ALLOWANCE

State Auditing Board Says
Its Cheaper to Travel Now

The state auditing board has reduced the maximum allowance for automobile hire by state officials and employees while traveling in that manner from 15 to 10 cents a mile, according to a notice transmitted by State Auditor D. C. Poindexter to department heads. The notice reads:

"Please be advised that on and after January 1, 1924, the state auditing board will not allow claims for automobile mileage which are in excess of ten cents per mile. This applies to all privately owned cars which are used by state officials and employees on the state's business. This action was taken after a careful investigation of the rates allowed by adjoining states and by private business concerns. With the present low prices of both cars and gasoline, the board feels that this amount will cover all costs of operation and leave a safe margin for depreciation."

The action was taken after Auditor Poindexter made an investigation and recommended the decrease to the board.

U. S. MARINE HELD NEEDED

Washington, Dec. 28.—Extension of the coast-wise shipping laws to the Philippines, separation of the emergency fleet corporation from the shipping board, compulsory cooperation between American railroads and shipping and a survey of the needs for a permanent merchant marine were recommended to President Coolidge today by Chairman Jones of the senate commerce committee.

Th cost of living, however, was almost three-quarters more than the 1913 average, September cost showing a 72.1 per cent increase over the prewar average. In September a year ago, costs were 66.3 per cent above the 1913 average, and at their lowest point since December, 1917, but December last year, showed an increase. There was a slight decrease according to March, 1923, figures, but since that time, living costs have been rising slightly.

102 CIVIL ACTIONS LISTED.
Grand Forks, N. D., Dec. 28.—There are 102 civil actions on the calendar for the term of the district court which will open here Jan. 2, at which Judge C. M. Cooley is to preside.

302 CIVIL ACTIONS LISTED.
Grand Forks, N. D., Dec. 28.—There are 302 civil actions on the calendar for the term of the district court which will open here Jan. 2, at which Judge C. M. Cooley is to preside.

SAYS LIQUOR CAUSED DEATH OF 875 PEOPLE

Deputy Coroner of Philadelphia Says You Can Buy
It on Street Corners

WILL PLACARD CITY

Coroner to Adopt This Method as a Warning Against New Year's Celebrations

Philadelphia, Dec. 28.—Poisonous liquor was held responsible for the death of 875 persons in this city during the present year, in a statement published by Deputy Coroner Frank Paul today.

"This city is wide open," he continued. "So-called liquor is being sold openly on the corners. You can buy all you want. But most of it is poisonous. You can't buy the pre-war liquor for one will sell you a concoction of 'drinks.' But most of it is either moonshine, denatured or colored alcohol and is poisonous."

To guard against an old-fashioned New Year celebration here with new-fashioned liquors Coroner William Knife will placard the city with posters showing photographs of the bodies of the victims of poisonous beverages and bearing warnings against indiscriminate purchase and consumption of "drinks." Vendors of poisonous liquors will be charged with homicide wherever results of an inquest indicate death from their wares, the coroner said in making his announcement.

STANTON QUILTS LABORATORY

Local Branch Will Not Be Abolished, However

E. M. Stanton, bacteriologist, in charge of the state branch laboratory in Bismarck, has resigned his position effective January 1. The local laboratory is a branch of the University of North Dakota chemical laboratory. No reason was given by Mr. Stanton for his resignation, which includes also his services as city chemist.

It was rumored recently that the laboratory here would be closed, but since it is maintained by specific legislative appropriation and assistance from the city, this is thought unlikely. An effort was made to discontinue all branch laboratories in the last legislature, but the effort failed.

It is reported that an effort may be made by authorities, in conjunction with the state health department, to place a sanitary engineer at the laboratory in addition to a bacteriologist.

DELEGATES TO FILE MAR. 1

Plenty of Time for Presidential Delegates to Get Into Action

Candidates for positions of delegates to the Republican and Democratic National Conventions will have until March 1 to file petitions to get their names on the ballot in the primary of March 18, 1924, under the laws governing the election. The Republican delegation will be boosted to 13 next year, under the new apportionment, while the Democratic delegation will remain at 10. Five hundred signatures are necessary to petitions to get the names on the ballot.

Candidates for president need not file petitions themselves. Five hundred persons may enter the name of any candidate for the party delegate support in this state, and delegates elected are bound by the primary result.

In addition, in the March 18 primary, national committeemen of the Republican and Democratic parties will be selected. Presumably there will be no committeemen elected by the Nonpartisan League, for while it is held by some to have attained party status it is not now affiliated with a national organization.

HANGS SELF
FROM TREE

Linton, Dec. 28.—Frederick Bender, 10-year-old son of Jake Bender, living about twenty miles southwest of Linton, was found Wednesday last week hanging to a tree about a mile west of the family home. Evidences indicate that he had hung himself there about two weeks before. The body was frozen, was fully clothed, and there were marks in a crotch of the tree where deceased had stood while fixing the piece of barb wire he used to cause his death.

G. O. P. LEADERS GATHER HERE IN CONFERENCE

Roy Frazier Calls Republican State Committee Into Session at Capital

PROGRAM IS LACKING

Many Possibilities Seen in Meeting Here Today to Discuss Party Affairs

The first real skirmish of the 1924 political season was scheduled to take place in Bismarck this afternoon, when members of the Republican state committee as headed by Roy Frazier of Crosby went into session at the state capitol on Frazier's call.

There was no program to be laid before the committee, according to Frazier. The very absence of anything tangible for discussion was expected to lead into numerous questions affecting the state's relation toward Frank Coolidge, Senator Hiram Johnson and other presidential candidates; the relation of the Republican organization to the Nonpartisan league, and allied questions. The Frazier committee is dominated by Nonpartisans, elected from various legislative districts in the state, there being 49 members of the committee. It appeared likely that two-thirds of the members would be present. The authority for the committee to represent the Republican party has been challenged by the "Real" Republican State Committee, headed by Burleigh Spalding of Fargo.

Among those who had come to the city were Gunder Olson of Fargo, national committeeman, United States Marshal James Shea, O. McGrath of Glen Ullin, Stephen Terhorst of Doonbrook, E. H. Myhra of Wahpeton and Roy Frazier.

Action by the committee in the event of the resignation of Congressman George M. Young, a convention to endorse delegates for the national convention and the attitude of the committee toward presidential candidates were among the possibilities of the meeting.

KLUX NOTE IS RECEIVED

Charles Wright Is Jailed For Carrying Revolver

Charles Wright, local colored man, received a Ku Klux Klan note, which led him into much trouble. Wright who lives at 507 15th street found a note replete with misspelled words and in a scrawling hand on front door night before last. It bristled with warnings of "K. K. E." and told him to leave town. It declared that the parties were tired of the "goings on" in the Wright house.

Charles immediately reported the matter to the police, who investigated and who concluded from the very nature of the note that it wasn't written by desperate characters. Charles put up a note in front of his house in return, inviting whoever wrote the note to meet him like a man and the loser take the consequences. No one appeared.

Last night Charles was armed with a big revolver as protection he said. He was arrested on a charge of carrying concealed weapons, taken before Justice of the Peace Anton Beer and sent to jail in default of a $500 bond while awaiting preliminary hearing.

Police expect to have the names of the writers of the note today, and action probably will follow.

MEMBERS OF CONGRESS JOIN IN PROBE OF CAPITAL LIQUOR SCANDAL

Washington, Dec. 28.—(By the A. P.)—Not only the diplomatic phase of the capital's bootleg scandal growing out of the pre-Christmas raid which has resulted in 14 arrests, but the whereabouts of the missing list of alleged purchasers seized at the time and liquor selling conditions generally in Washington are engaging members of Congress while District of Columbia and federal officials wrestle with their own angles of the problem. Rep. Newton, Republican of Minnesota, has addressed a request for the facts in the case to Commissioner Blair of the internal revenue bureau, Commissioner Oyster of the District of Columbia, and to Secretary Hughes due to the successful efforts of Dr. Sokolowski, secretary of the Polish legation, to prevent seizure of a large stock of liquor stored in an apartment building on the ground of diplomatic immunity.

KORETZ, 'OIL BUBBLE' PROMOTER, LEFT WARNING NOTE TO HIS SON

Chicago, Dec. 28.—White Leo Koretz, alleged swindler of $5,000,000 through fictitious oil promotions, has vanished. He has left behind a warning against dishonesty. His advice contained in a letter to his son, written two days after the search for him started, according to Dr. Milton Mandell, who said he received it, was read into court record. It said as quoted by Dr. Mandell:

"My dear son: This is probably the last communication you will have from me. I am a fugitive without family or friends. I am a victim of selfishness, idleness and my desire to receive the acclaim and applause of the world. You have an adorable sister and mother. Be good to them. Be honest and strong. If you are ever tempted or feel yourself slipping think of the fate that awaits me."

"Your Father,
"Leo Koretz."

FRANK REED IS VERY LOW

Former Postmaster Frank Reed, one of the most widely known citizens of the city, was reported very low today in a local hospital, where he has been ill for several months. Doubt was expressed by friends if he would be able to withstand the attacks of disease much longer.

GASOLINE TO RISE 2 CENTS STANDARDSAYS

Announces First Increase in Price in Many Months,
Effective Tomorrow

NO EXPLANATION

Chicago, Dec. 28.—A two-cent increase in the price of gasoline effective tomorrow was announced today by the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, the first upward price movement since the gasoline war in the fall brought gasoline prices down in most of the country to the lowest levels in years.

The increase as announced was in the price of tank wagon gasoline, the service station price going up as a matter of course. There is a differential of 2 cents a gallon between the tank wagon price and the service station charge throughout the 10 cents served by the Standard Oil Company of Indiana.

Recent increases in the price of crude oil were responsible for the Standard's decision to advance the price of gasoline, it was understood, although the company officials made no statement of explanation.

At the time of price slashing when Governor W. H. McMaster of South Dakota started the war by cutting gasoline prices deeply at state oil depots, the Standard Oil Company of Indiana made equivalent cuts in its prices to meet the Governor's South Dakota prices and announced the reduced prices were below the cost of production and that the company had a fixed policy never to let a customer pay more for its product than they would pay elsewhere.

SEEKING HOME FOR CHILDREN

Wanted—A home for five motherless children, two of them girls and three boys.

C. B. Davis, juvenile commissioner at the present time has the children under his supervision in a comfortable farm home near Minot and is seeking to secure foster parents for the unfortunate little folks whose mother died at Van Hook a few days ago, following a long illness due to cancer.

The three boys are aged 9, 7 and 6 respectively and the girls are aged 3 and nine months respectively. According to Mr. Davis the quintet is composed of well behaved youngsters, any one of whom would prove suitable for adoption into a home. The children are of German and Bohemian descent.

Relatives of the unfortunate family are too poor to care for the children, according to Mr. Davis.

ROTARY HOST TO CHILDREN

Grand Forks, N. D., Dec. 27.—Sixty Grand Forks youngsters were guests of the local Rotary club at luncheon Wednesday, a Rotarian being host to each juvenile. A turkey dinner was served and each guest was presented with a package of candy.

SAILSTAD AND ANDERSON TO SERVE 4 YEARS

Will be Eligible for Parole After Half of Sentence

WORKED BIG HOAX

Superior, Wis., Dec. 28.—Edward J. Sailstad and Dorothy Anderson of Eau Claire today pleaded guilty to a charge of arson and were sentenced to four years' imprisonment by Judge Archibald McKay in court here.

Sailstad must serve his sentence at Green Bay reformatory for men while his "sunshine girl" is to be confined at the women's reformatory at Taycheedah.

"Of course," said Judge McKay, on concluding a brief statement to the pair, "there will be a substantial reduction in this sentence on good behavior."

The pair will not be eligible for parole until they have served half of their sentence, according to the Wisconsin statutes.

Sailstad, former Eau Claire, Wis., business man, disappeared and later a charred body was found in ruins of his cottage. Insurance companies contested payment of $32,000 life insurance to his widow, who later remarried. Recently Sailstad and the Anderson girl were arrested in California, and he confessed to having exhumed the body of a friend and burned it in the cottage.

WILSON TODAY 67 YEARS OLD

Former President Observes
the Day Very Quietly

Washington, Dec. 28.—Woodrow Wilson is 67 years old today, but there were no celebrations or demonstrations to break the quiet routine of his home.

The former President spent the day much in the manner that he has passed his time in recent months. He continues his program of rest, varied with frequent automobile rides into the country.

LIVING COSTS SINK SLIGHTLY

Washington, Dec. 28.—The cost of living was one-fifth less in September this year than it was in June, 1920, when the highest point of living costs since 1913 was reached. A decrease of 20.5 per cent in the total cost of living in the United States as determined by a consolidation of the figures for 32 specified cities, is shown in an announcement issued by the bureau of labor statistics.

The cost of living, however, was almost three-quarters more than the 1913 average, September cost showing a 72.1 per cent increase over the prewar average. Presumably there will be no committeemen elected by the Nonpartisan League, for while it is held by some to have attained party status it is not now affiliated with a national organization.

HANGS SELF FROM TREE

Linton, Dec. 28.—Frederick Bender, 19-year-old son of Jake Bender, living about twenty miles southwest of Linton, was found Wednesday of last week hanging to a tree about a mile west of the family home. Evidence indicates that he had hung himself there about two weeks before. The body was frozen, was fully clothed, and there were marks in a crotch of the tree where deceased had stood while fixing the piece of barb wire he used to cause his death.

Roy Frazier Calls Republican State Committee Into Session at Capital

PROGRAM IS LACKING

Many Possibilities Seen in Meeting Here Today to Discuss Party Affairs

The first real skirmish of the 1924 political season was scheduled to take place in Bismarck this afternoon, when members of the Republican state committee as headed by Roy Frazier of Crosby went into session at the state capitol on Frazier's call.

There was no program to be laid before the committee, according to Frazier. The very absence of anything tangible for discussion was expected to lead into numerous questions affecting the state's relation toward President Coolidge, Senator Hiram Johnson and other presidential candidates; the relation of the Republican organization to the Nonpartisan league, and allied questions.

The Frazier committee is dominated by Nonpartisans, elected from various legislative districts in the state, there being 49 members of the committee. It appeared likely that two-thirds of the members would be present. The authority for the committee to represent the Republican party has been challenged by the "Real Republican State Committee" headed by Burleigh Spaulding of Fargo.

Among those who had come to the city were Gunder Olson of Fargo, national committeeman, United States Marshal James Shea, O. McGrath of Glen Ullin, Stephen Thorst of Doonbrook, E. H. Myhr of Wahpeton and Roy Frazier.

Action by the committee in the event of the resignation of Congressman George M. Young, a convention to endorse delegates for the national convention and the attitude of the committee toward presidential candidates were among the possibilities of the meeting.

ORGANIZE COOLIDGE CLUB

Fargo, Dec. 28.—Preliminary steps for the organization of a "Coolidge for President" club were taken in Fargo last evening at a meeting of boosters for the president here at the commercial club. There was a representative gathering and a temporary organization was perfected by the election of Judge B. F. Spaulding as chairman and J. G. Halland as secretary. Resolutions endorsing President Coolidge's stand on the important issues of the day and especially the interest he has shown in the problems confronting the agricultural section of the country, were unanimously adopted.

All Republicans in Fargo who want President Coolidge to succeed himself, will be asked to join the club. The purpose of the organization is to support the candidacy of the president to the end that delegates be elected in the March primary by the Republicans of this state who will stand for President Coolidge's nomination by the national convention.

CLUX NOTE IS RECEIVED

Charles Wright Is Jailed For Carrying Revolver

Charles Wright, local colored man, received a Ku Klux Klan note, which led him into much trouble. Wright who lives at 507 15th street found a note replete with misspelled words and in a scrawling hand on front door night before last. It bristled with warnings of "K. K. K." and told him to leave town. It declared that the parties were tired of the "goings on" in the Wright house.

Charles immediately reported the matter to the police, who investigated and who concluded from the very nature of the note that it wasn't written by desperate characters. Charles put up a note in front of his house in return, inviting whoever wrote the note to meet him like a man and the loser take the consequences. No one appeared.

Last night Charles was armed with a big revolver as protection he said. He was arrested on a charge of carrying concealed weapons, taken before Justice of the Peace Anton Beer and sent to jail in default of a $500 bond while awaiting preliminary hearing.

Police expect to have the names of the writers of the note today, and action probably will follow.

THREE TERMS ARE LISTED

Judge Fred Jansoni of district court, who is transacting business in chambers here during the holidays will return to Jamestown probably about January 8 to complete a jury term of court there. On January 22 Judge Jansoni will sit in court in Pessenden, and later terms at Carrington and Steel.

Frank Kohoutek, charged with violating the prohibition law at Benedict, McLean county, pleaded guilty before Judge Jansoni and was sentenced to serve 90 days in jail, pay a fine of $200 and costs of $50 in the case.

STONE SWALLOWED BY CHILD CAUSES DEATH

Hankinson, N. D., Dec. 28.—A small stone which she swallowed caused the death of Othella Lucille, eight-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ole Evenson of New Ellington, S. D. The stone became lodged in the air passage of her throat. She was brought here for medical attention and then was taken to a Breckenridge hospital where an operation was necessary to remove the pebble. Infection, coupled with pneumonia, caused death.

Chicago, Dec. 29.—While Leo Koretz, alleged swindler of $5,000,000 through fictitious oil promotions, has vanished he has left behind a warning against dishonesty. His advice contained in a letter to his son, written two days after the search for him started, according to Dr. Milton Mandell, who said he received it, was read into court record. It said as quoted by Dr. Mandell:

"My dear son: This is probably the last communication you will have from me. I am a fugitive without family or friends. I am a victim of selfishness, idleness and my desire to receive the acclaim and applause of the world. You have an adorable sister and mother. Be good to them. Be honest and strong. If you are ever tempted or feel yourself slipping think of the fate that awaits me. "Your Father, "Leo Koretz."

FRANK REED IS VERY LOW

Former Postmaster Frank Reed, one of the most widely known citizens of the city, was reported very low today in a local hospital, where he has been ill for several months. Doubt was expressed by friends if he would be able to withstand the attacks of disease much longer.

GASOLINE TO RISE 2 CENTS STANDARD SAYS

Announces First Increase in Price in Many Months, Effective Tomorrow

NO EXPLANATION

Chicago, Dec. 28.—A two-cent increase in the price of gasoline effective tomorrow was announced today by the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, the first upward price movement since the gasoline war in the fall brought gasoline prices down in most of the country to the lowest levels in years.

The increase as announced was in the price of tank wagon gasoline, the service station price going up as a matter of course. There is a differential of 2 cents a gallon between the tank wagon price and the service station charge throughout the 10 cents served by the Standard Oil Company of Indiana.

Recent increases in the price of crude oil were responsible for the Standard's decision to advance the price of gasoline, it was understood, although the company officials made no statement of explanation.

At the time of price slashing when Governor W. H. McMaster of South Dakota started the war by cutting gasoline prices deeply at state oil depots, the Standard Oil Company of Indiana made equivalent cuts in its prices to meet the Governor's South Dakota prices and announced the reduced prices were below the cost of production and that the company had a fixed policy never to let a customer pay more for its product than they would pay elsewhere.

WILSON TODAY 67 YEARS OLD

Former President Observes the Day Very Quietly

Washington, Dec. 28.—Woodrow Wilson is 67 years old today, but there were no celebrations or demonstrations to break the quiet routine of his home.

The former President spent the day much in the manner that he has passed his time in recent months. He continues his program of rest, varied with frequent automobile rides into the country.

SEEKING HOME FOR CHILDREN

Wanted—a home for five motherless children, two of them girls and three boys.

C. B. Davis, juvenile commissioner at the present time has the children under his supervision in a comfortable farm home near Minot and is seeking to secure foster parents for the unfortunate little folks whose mother died at Van Hook a few days ago, following a long illness due to cancer.

The three boys are aged 9, 7 and 6 respectively and the girls are aged 3 and nine months respectively. According to Mr. Davis the quintet is composed of well behaved youngsters, any one of whom would prove suitable for adoption into a home. The children are of German and Bohemian descent.

Relatives of the unfortunate family are too poor to care for the children, according to Mr. Davis.

ROTARY HOST TO CHILDREN

Grand Forks, N. D., Dec. 27.—Sixty Grand Forks youngsters were guests of the local Rotary club at luncheon Wednesday, a Rotarian being host to each juvenile. A turkey dinner was served and each guest was presented with a package of candy.

MEMBERS OF CONGRESS JOIN IN PROBE OF CAPITAL LIQUOR SCANDAL

Washington, Dec. 28.—(By the A. P.)—Not only the diplomatic phase of the capital's bootleg scandal growing out of the pre-Christmas raid which has resulted in 14 arrests, but the whereabouts of the missing list of alleged purchasers seized at the time and liquor selling conditions generally in Washington are engaging members of Congress while District of Columbia and federal officials wrestle with their own angles of the problem. Rep. Newton, Republican of Minnesota, has addressed a request for the facts in the case to Commissioner Blair of the internal revenue bureau, Commissioner Oyster of the District of Columbia and to Secretary Hughes due to the successful efforts of Dr. Sokolowski, secretary of the Polish legation, to prevent seizure of a large stock of liquor stored in an apartment building on the ground of diplomatic immunity.

COMMANDER'S BODY FOUND NEAR SICILY

Lieut. Grenadan's Body Found By Fishermen Six Miles Off of Land

SEARCH BEING MADE

French Ministry Officially Announces That Dirigible Was Lost at Sea

OFFICIALLY ANNOUNCED

Paris, Dec. 28.—(By the A. P.)—An official announcement today said that the dirigible Dixmude had been lost at sea.

A French cruiser and three torpedo boats were ordered to Sciacca. Body identified.

The receipt of a telegram from the French naval attaché in Rome announcing that the body of Lieut. Grenadan, commander of the missing dirigible, had been found in Sicilian waters, caused all hope of the safety of the Dixmude to be abandoned. These hopes had flared up last evening on receipt of reports that the balloon had been floating helplessly over the Sahara desert.

The Rome advices convinced the officials there could be no possible doubt as to the identity of the body picked up as Lieut. Grenadan had an identification on his wrist.

Italian fishermen hauling in their nets at the end of their day's task last evening brought the body to the surface.

The fact that no vestige of wreckage or other bodies of the airship's crew were found caused the ministry of marine to refrain from abandoning search of the African desert for traces of the missing dirigible. Combining of the Mediterranean, however, will be the foremost branch of the search in the immediate future.

NEWS CONFIRMED

Rome, Dec. 28.—(By the A. P.)—A message received by the ministry of marine from Sciacca confirming the news of the identification of the body of the Dixmude's commander says a thorough general search along the coast nearby has not yielded any trace of any other body or any aeronautical body.

FIRE CAUSES HEAVY LOSS

Theater and Office Building in Lansing Is Destroyed

Lansing, Michigan, Dec. 28.—The six-story Oakland building and Regent theater, one of Lansing's leading office and theater buildings, were practically wiped out by fire early today. The origin of the fire was unknown. One fireman was seriously injured and removed to a hospital. Flying embers set fire to other buildings, two and three blocks away but these were quickly extinguished. The loss is estimated at $300,000.

East Grand Forks, Minn., Dec. 28.—Earl Bustad and John Anderson of East Grand Forks pleaded guilty in municipal court here to selling liquor. They were fined $100 each. The arrests were made on Christmas day by the local officials.

NEGROES MOVE TOWARD NORTH BUREAU FINDS

Total Increase in Colored Population in United States 635,368

Washington, Dec. 27.—The center of negro population in the United States has been determined by the Census Bureau as 1.3 miles north of Birmingham, Ala. In 1920 it was located 10.4 miles east of Lafayette, La. From 1890 to 1920 the southwestern movement was continued and it advanced 20.1 miles to a point 10.1 miles southwest of Lafayette, and about 4 miles east of the Alabama line. In 100 years it had moved southwest 46.3 miles, an average of 46 miles each decade. From 1890 to 1920 its movement was greatly retarded, and it advanced only 9.1 miles, across the Alabama-Georgia state line to 10.7 miles northeast of Fort Payne, Alabama about 4 miles west of the Georgia line. In 1910 it was located 5.4 miles north-northeast of Fort Payne, its movement for the decade being 6 miles west-southwest. Its movement south was retarded by the migration of negroes to the northern and eastern states. In 1920 it moved back across the state line into Georgia and was located 1.8 miles north-northeast of Rising Fawn, Dade county, Georgia, having moved 21.6 miles.

"The present northeasterly movement was due principally to the great increase in the negro population of Massachusetts, Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Ohio, Indiana and Michigan. The total increase in the negro population of the United States was 635,368, and the increase in the northern states noted was 56 percent of the total increase. This hearkens north of the negro population was due mainly to the expansion of certain industries during the World War, the high wages paid being the great attraction. It is probably true that this movement has been continuing, due to the reduction of the cotton crop and the demand for common labor at higher wages in the north."

MARKET NEWS WHEAT DOWN EARLY TODAY

Selling Fairly General At Opening of Trading

Chicago, Dec. 27.—With selling fairly general and demand lacking, wheat was inclined to sag today during the early transactions. Domestic receipts were smaller at many points, but Canadian stocks continued to pile up and it was contended that regardless of the tariff a large amount of the Canadian grain was destined to come into the United States. Besides deliveries in December contracts here were again liberal. The opening which varied from unchanged figures to 3-8 cents lower, May $1.06 3-4 to $1.07 and July $1.05 5-8 to $1.05 3-4 was followed by a moderate decline all around.

Subsequently further declines took place. Houses with northwestern connections led the selling. The close was heavy 3-8 to 1-4 cents net lower, May $1.06 1-2 to $1.06 3-8 and July $1.05 3-8.

FAMOUS STAR PLEASES HERE

May Robson Provides Entertaining Comedy at Auditorium

This is a season of revivals in the theatrical world. Last season was featured in the East by the adoption of Shakespearean roles by many noted stage stars, some critics indulging themselves in observations that several Broadway producers were delighted over their sudden discovery of dramatic genius in the Bard of Avon's writings. But this winter the critics have been cheated by numerous producers who have dusted off the covers of famous successes of many years ago. May Robson, who came back to Bismarck last night, followed in their wake. She produced her greatest early success, "The Rejuvenation of Aunt Mary," and it proved to be a vehicle far better adapted to her characterizations than her "Mother's Millions" of last year. Mrs. Robson evoked genuine and spontaneous applause here and responded to numerous curtain calls.

Mrs. Robson appeared as a nu-pi-oh-ated, droll, eccentric country woman, whose life was made over by a visit to New York with a crowd of young folks whose life and merit awaken her dormant spirit of gaiety. Her love for her nephew, his college pranks and his love affairs formed the basis for the thread of humor and pathos that ran through the play. Diverting music added action to the scenes.

NEW DRILL BOOK READY

Newton, Kans., Dec. 27.—Provisional drill regulations of the Grand Encampment of Knights Templar of the United States of America, printed in book form as authorized by a special committee at the triennial encampment at New Orleans in May, 1922, are ready for distribution throughout the country on orders from commanderies or individual sir knights.

The book contains the authorization by the grand master, definitions, general principles and rules, orders and commands, all manner of drill tactics and maneuvers, competitive drills, parades, inspections, bugle signals and calls, rules for the proper display of the American flag and other data important in the conduct of the commandery. The committee, of which Col. P. M. Holington of Newton, was made chairman, expects to have the book adopted by the next grand encampment at Seattle, without revision.

Commanderies of Knights Templar within the jurisdiction of the grand encampment are urged to adopt the book in an authorization of the provisional report by Leonidas P. Newby, grand master of the grand encampment, Knightstown, Indiana.

Agitation over a long period of years for uniform regulations was said to have prompted the action at New Orleans. Ever since the organization has existed in the United States, it was explained, each grand commandery jurisdiction has followed regulations and tactics of its own adoption and had caused some confusion and uncertainty in the triennial convocations. The committee was selected on individual merit in ability and experience in drill regulations.

DIXMUDE HELD LOST; HOPE FOR CREW'S SAFETY

Officials Feel That Personnel of the Giant Airship May Still Be Alive

Paris, Dec. 27.—(By the Associated Press.)—The loss of the dirigible Dixmude is now reluctantly admitted although hope for the safety of her crew of 50 officers and men have not been relinquished. Officials who feel that the great airship's personnel is still alive recall that nothing was heard of the crew of the Goliath which broke down in Mauritania in August, 1919, until a week after the accident and all hope had been given up.

It is considered certain that the Dixmude fell on the desert somewhere between Biskra and Toggourt, southern Algeria, during the gale that prevented her from crossing the Gulf of Gabes and returning to France.

The ministry of marine announced today that the Dixmude had not been heard from or seen since 8 p. m. on Dec. 21. She gave her position as approximately 60 miles north of Toggourt or about 90 miles south of Biskra heading for Algiers on the Mediterranean on the north side of the Atlas mountains.

ALUMNI TO PLAY B. H. S.

Basketball Game Is Scheduled For 8 p. m. Friday Night

Former high school basketball stars will endeavor to teach the present high school team something about basketball at the high school gym Friday night at 8 p. m.

The holiday alumni-high school game, which is almost an annual affair, will bring together on the alumni team Jack Burke, Ed Serog, Ty Klund, Bruce Doyle, Bruce Murphy, Art Nathan, Phil Boise and perhaps a few others.

The alumni team expects graduates of the high school to be out rooting for them, and to outtell the high school team supporters.

'CAT, CANARY' SHOW PRAISED

There is undoubtedly greater discrimination in the values of plays today than before the moving pictures educated people to know their theatre. Astute producers are recognizing this fact and when at play has been on tour for two years it is certain that play is providing good entertainment of the sort the public desires.

"The Cat and the Canary" which will come here soon, has been played by four companies in the United States, and for two years past, by two in England, one in Australia, and T. Daniel Frawley took it with him on his recent tour of the Far East. Reviewers who have written of the east, which will play the local engagement, state it is as good an ensemble performance as could be given. "The Cat and the Canary" is a thrilling mystery play, thrilling enough to be delightful, yet not so mysterious as to be without the bounds of possible fact.

THINKS RADIO IS BURGLAR

Chicago, Dec. 27.—At 2 o'clock yesterday morning J. Baird, owner of Waukegan, awakened across the telephone from his residence for police aid. When they arrived they found Mr. Baird, who was in a corner of his living room, a revolver in his hand. It was discovered that he had emptied his revolver into the loud speaker of his radio set.

He had been awakened by the voice in the horn and mistaken it for a burglar.

MASONS MEET SOON IN FARGO

Plans Are Being Made For the Grand Chapter

Fargo, Dec. 27.—Plans are being made for the annual convocation of the Grand Chapter of North Dakota to R. M. which is to be held in Fargo on January 22 and 23; it was announced at the Masonic temple yesterday. The Grand Council will open on January 24 for a one day session. About 300 Masons from points over the entire state are expected to attend.

The grand chapter will open Tuesday morning, January 22 and delegates will be conferred during the two day session. Candidates from almost every chapter in North Dakota will attend the convocation to receive the most excellent master's degree which will be completed in full form. Tuesday evening the annual grand chapter banquet will be held in the temple dining rooms at 8 o'clock.

Immediately after the grand chapter closes its convocation early Wednesday afternoon, Fargo council will exemplify and confer the Royal and select master's degree. In the evening the super-excellent master's degree will be exemplified in full form.

The grand council will open its session on Thursday morning. Three or more delegates from each chapter and council in the state are expected to attend the convocations at the local temple.

KRAUSE WINS AT GARRISON

Garrison, N. D., Dec. 27.—Battling Krause of Fargo knocked out Eddie Callen in the fifth round of their scheduled ten round bout here.

It was a hard fight with Krause having a slight edge all the way. A right uppercut in the fifth round sent Callen down for the full count.

Saturday night Krause will fight Freddy Wrinko at Zap, N. D., and on Monday night will appear here again against Dick Johnson. He will return to Fargo in time for the New Year's card there.

Engineers Survey Balkan Ventures

GREECE HAILS VENIZELOS' IN RETURN HOME

Believe That Leader Will Be Able to Compose Political Situation

Athens, Dec. 27.—Athens is taking of itself else than the decision of Eleutherios Constantine Venizelos, Greece's wartime premier, to return to his homeland and give the country the benefit of his genius as a statesman and conciliator in an attempt to readjust the problems which have arisen from Greece's bitter political strife.

Greek meets Greek with salutation: "He's coming," which is reminiscent of two years ago when King Constantine was recalled from exile in Switzerland, and already sworn political enemies have been seen shaking hands.

The Athens newspapers today gave much space to portraits of Venizelos, and particulars of the successful effort to have him return to Greece. The republican papers, while not desiring to minimize the importance of the event, take care to point out that the former premier's sojourn here will only be temporary, and proceed to reveal their fears that Venizelos may insist on the return of the king in order to gain the support of the royalists to his program.

REVOLVERS DISBANDED

London, Dec. 27.—The military organizations in Greece which agitated for the departure of King George, says a dispatch from Athens, have been dissolved voluntarily in view of former Premier Venizelos' decision to return to Greece. The organizations have notified M. Venizelos that having fulfilled their aims, they would leave the future confidence in his hands.

The services organized by Colonel Plafias as leader of the Military revolution will also be dispersed on January 1, the dispatch adds.

PROGRAM FOR EDITORS IS NOW ARRANGED

Fargo, Dec. 27.—H. C. Hotelling, of St. Paul, Minn., president of the National Editorial association, W. B. GIVES WEALTH TO EMPLOYEES

Chicagoan Provides Independent Fortunes For Ten

Chicago, Dec. 27.—As reward for their financial support and co-operation seven years ago when he needed aid, J. Lyons Geyon, made wealthy in the ballroom business, announced he was providing a start to independence and wealth for each of 10 of his employees.

Ground is being broken for the first five of a series of 10 30-apartment buildings, each to cost $150,000, each of which will be turned over to one of the 10 employees after three years of steady management under his guidance. Each of the buildings is expected to produce an annual income of $27,000.

Mr. Geyon told how seven years ago when he was financially "broke," with all of his money invested in a ballroom and he had embarked on a program of "clean" dancing, he needed help to keep going and that the 10 employees pooled their savings and turned the money over to him.

The life turned in his favor, and today he is the owner of some 50 apartment buildings. Now he wants to help each of the 10 men who helped him to get a real start toward prosperity.

The only stipulation is that the new apartment owners shall not produce on rents.

74 HELD FOR BOOZE ACTIONS

Little Rock, Ark., Dec. 27.—What federal prohibition officials term Arkansas' biggest "booze scandal" will be aired at the term of federal court, which opens at Batesville, January 8, it became known here today when officials made public a list of 74 Jackson county residents who have been held to the Batesville term of court on charges of violating the national prohibition law.

BOYS'-GIRLS' CLUBS ADVANCE

Are Making Rapid Progress in North Dakota

Fargo, N. D., Dec. 27.—That boys and girls' club work is making rapid progress in North Dakota is indicated by the reports of the holdings of 86 club members who attended the annual achievement institute which closed Saturday at the North Dakota Agricultural college.

Total profits on club projects conducted by the 86 members in 1922 were $4,071, according to figures collected by Harry E. Billings, state club leader, compared with $3,072 for the members who attended the 1922 institute. Total value of all property of club members was $19,628 for the 86 who attended the institute, while a year ago the total was $7,434 for the 60 who attended. Average value per member this year was $205 compared with $124 a year ago.

A summary of the reports of the delegates follows:

Kind	Value 1922	Value 1923
Profit on Project	$4,071	$3,072
Bank Accounts	3,881	962
Pigs Owned	1,914	879
Beef Cattle Owned	1,074	435
Dairy Cattle Owned	1,555	616
Sheep Owned	650	228
Other Livestock	1,595	697
Poultry	953	1,456
All Other Property	3,020	2,375

The average delegate had been in club work 2.44 years compared with an average of 2.3 years in 1922, despite the fact that four of the 16 counties sending members were counties in which club work is new.

SCIENTISTS SAY MT. ELIAS IS INFANT

Has Fine Chance to Develop
Into Full Grown Mountain,
Geologists Assert

IS STILL ACTIVE

Relates History of Growth of Mountain—Forecast Possible Movement

By NEA Service
Skagway, Alaska, Dec. 28.—Mount St. Elias is 16,024 feet high today—but wait until it's through growing! It may get taller than Mount McKinley and even take the world-wide leadership from Mount Everest. St. Elias is a rapidly growing little cuss. Already St. Elias is third highest of North America's peaks—and it is a mere infant, geologists declare.

One of science's favorite sports these days is watching St. Elias grow. And it is performing, too, scientists tell the world.

Mount St. Elias is in southeastern Alaska, part of the St. Elias range, which forms the boundary between American and Canadian territory. Its lower sides and base are buried in massive glaciers, which stretch along the coast for more than 100 miles. It is just a few miles inland from Yakutat Bay. This makes St. Elias visible from steamers traveling fairly close to shore.

Quakes Responsible
Rising from the coast through its glaciers, Mount St. Elias presents a vista not to be found elsewhere—a sheer sweep from ocean to sky, with nothing save low lying glaciers to break the view of the mountain.

But to get back to growing mountain. It's not the climate, geologists say, although it is admitted that perpetual snow is an asset to a peak's beauty.

Rather, it is geological formation that makes Elias grow. The St. Elias mountains were formed by the earth's uplift involving folding and faulting. Mount St. Elias is still actively growing, growth being accomplished by movements of the earth along a series of fault lines. Through these, the mountain block is being uplifted.

Earthquakes are the "growing pains" of the mountain's growth. In addition to sending the peak closer to the sky, these tremors have also made many changes in the Yakutat district.

"Growing Pains"
The last big growth recorded for Mount St. Elias occurred late in 1899. A cataclysmic upheaval shook a wide area in southeastern Alaska. It apparently centered in the Yakutat region. The few whites and the natives who were fishing there at the time, declare the earthquake shocks, of unusual violence, continued for 17 days.

And Mount St. Elias grew taller as a result. Likewise, Yakutat Bay's innermost recesses were changed about.

On the shore of Disenchantment Bay closest to Mount St. Elias, the beach was raised from seven to 47 feet. On the opposite side, there was a corresponding depression. In the bay, two reefs appeared.

High above the reach of the present highest waves, the west shore shows rock benches, caves, pebbles and other evidences of seawater activities. Scattered through these are the remains of marine life, left high and dry by the upheavals. Barnacles and mussel shells are found many feet from the water, still clinging to ledges. Marine growths always below low tide level are also out of the water, while there are several lines of driftwood, etc., some distance apart, each marking a former water level.

Sunk Elsewhere
Compensating for this rise is the depression elsewhere. As a result, a forest formerly bordering the shore line is now in the water. Waves running through the trees are beginning to kill the trees.

The U. S. Geological Survey, which sent a party of scientists to study the phenomenon, found unquestionable evidence of the mountain's growth.

In the course of a few hundred years, Mount St. Elias, at this rate, ought to be a real sizable little hummock—while Disenchantment Bay may be moved from Alaska to Panama.

BIG OUTPUT IS REPORTED BY STATE MILL

Grand Forks, N. D., Dec. 28.—Mill products to the value of $2,664,151.70 were shipped out by the North Dakota state mill here during the four months from Aug. 1 to Nov. 30, last, according to a report by C. E. Austin, general manager of the mill and elevator, which was submitted to the board of managers of the plant at the monthly meeting which adjourned Saturday.

Shipments made during this period including the following:
Flour, valued at $1,752,715.98
Semolina, valued at 438,884.74
Feed, valued at 352,048.53
Screenings, valued at 20,502.54
$1,959,598 Of Wheat Required
Mr. Austin's report showed that during the four months in question,

IT'S SURE SOME ROCK!

H. Nathan of San Francisco has a diamond worth $100,000. But he doesn't know what to do with it. Just now he's allowing Evelyn Forest to wear it while she's having her picture taken. The costly gem, set with innumerable smaller stones worth $15,000, originally was given as a decoration to a Persian military officer. Nathan bought it recently.

The mill ran practically at full capacity, and that the products turned out included 369,597 barrels of flour to which must be added the feed and other byproducts obtained. To produce this output wheat to the value of $1,939,398.37 was required.

The report for November showed that 91,223 barrels of flour were manufactured during that month and that the month's sales were as follows:

Flour	$443,785.50
Semolina	109,681.33
Feed	78,060.70
Screenings	5,983.73
Total	$637,511.26

After viewing the report for the four months the board members expressed themselves as being well satisfied with the results shown. The business of the session was concluded Saturday afternoon and the board adjourned. The next session will be held in January.

FOOD SUPPLY IN NO DANGER SAYS EXPERT

Berkeley, Cal., Dec. 28.—Will the population of the world ever increase to such numbers that the food supply will run out? "No," predicts Professor C. C. Plehn of the department of economics in the University of California.

But the professor qualifies his negative by saying that if the population of the world ever increases as fully as it has the power to, there certainly will be a shortage of food.

He explains that, as a matter of statistics, this probably never can happen, since events and conditions always intervene to prevent over-population.

Yet, he concedes, in certain countries this economic over-population has occurred. He cites the annual famines in China and India, which he contends, are due to the fact that the birth rate never has been kept down in those countries and consequently the food supply proves inadequate.

"Dread diseases always follow famine in the train of excessive population and shortage of food," the professor points out, and he states further that as population increases the land is proportionately over-worked.

"In America, especially, population has always been held in check. People are made to realize the importance of keeping a balance between the population and the food supply. Farmers manage to produce enough food to satisfy everybody, even though agricultural methods improve more slowly than the population increases. The amount of effort expended in labor and machinery for getting food is increasing steadily, so that, although population tends to increase more rapidly than food, there never will be danger of food giving out."

ABOLISHES 3RS FROM SCHOOLS

Installs Instead Education
With Music, Dancing, and Nature Study

BY MARIAN HALE
NEA Service Writer

New York, Dec. 28.—School children have one real friend, Mrs. Marjette L. Johnson, educator and lecturer.

She would abolish the "three R's" from the first few years of their school life.

She would do away with grades, promotions and failures, credit marks and staying after school.

She would replace these unpleasant features of education with music, dancing, nature study and the like.

And she would release father and mother from the humiliation of home work, and being obliged to admit to their children that they have forgotten how to conjugate Latin verbs or extract cube root.

Form of Growth

"Education itself is only growth," Mrs. Johnson declared. "Therefore the school program as well as the home environment should be merely right conditions of growth."

"One of the greatest needs is that the order of the development of the nervous system shall not be violated by any work of the school. The body should be allowed wholesome freedom and all specialized activity should be postponed until a later period. This alone would mean quite a revolution in our public school system."

But the professor qualifies his negative by saying that if the population of the world ever increases as fully as it has the power to, there certainly will be a shortage of food.

He explains that, as a matter of statistics, this probably never can happen, since events and conditions always intervene to prevent over-population.

Yet, he concedes, in certain countries this economic over-population has occurred. He cites the annual famines in China and India, which he contends, are due to the fact that the birth rate never has been kept down in those countries and consequently the food supply proves inadequate.

BEAUTY

Miss Sylvia Brainerd, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Brainerd of Washington, D. C., is one of the season's most popular, and also most beautiful member of the young set.

"I believe that reading, writing and numbers should be postponed until the pupil is at least eight or nine years old—and possibly later—according to his physical development."

Small Classes

"The reason I would eliminate all grades and systems of promotions," she explains, "is because they make for self-consciousness and are against the health of the spirit."

"I believe that a program of self-prompted, creative activities, such as music and dancing, and initiation into the realms of nature study and the world of fantasy would provide sufficient wholesome occupation for all children of the early elementary grades."

Mrs. Johnson is director of the Fairhope Summer School at Greenwich, Conn., where she introduces many innovations in education.

JOHN'S LAW FIRM.

Fargo, Dec. 28.—W. F. Burnett of Dickinson, a member there of the law firm of Crawford & Burnett, will come to Fargo and will be a member of the law firm of Conroy, Young & Burman. It was announced.

Mr. Burnett joins the Fargo firm, known as Young, Conroy & Young until the death recently of the senior member, Judge N. C. Young. The change will be effective as of Jan. 1. Members of the firm will be E. T. Conroy, H. C. Young and Mr. Burnett.

The new member of the firm, who was born in Ireland, has been a resident of Dickinson for 30 years, and has practiced law there for the past 17 years. He was in the Philippines.

"I was engaged to the prettiest little doll in Indiana, but my stomach and liver trouble had made me so groggy that she broke it off. I tried all kinds of medicine and doctors and got no relief. The gas blew me up like a porcupine and I had awful colic attacks. Finally I heard of Mayr's Wonderful Remedy and it has certainly fixed me up fine. I am now as good as ever." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. MARKET NEWS

WHEAT TAKES NEW UPTURNS

At Liverpool Gains Helps U. S. Wheat Market

Chicago, Dec. 28.—Unexpected upturns in "at Liverpool" led to something of a gain here by wheat values today during the early dealings. Absence of selling pressure counted also as a bullish influence. On the opening which varied from unchanged figures to 8 cents higher, May, $1.05 1/2 to $1.06 3/4 and July, $1.05 1/2 to $1.05 3/4, was followed by slight general rise before the market began to recede. Subsequently a fresh ascent carried the market higher than before, but another reaction was witnessed. Bulls took the view that a betterment of prices would be witnessed with the opening of the New Year. The close was steady to a shade 1/2 to 3/8 cents net advance, May $1.06 3/4 to $1.06 7/8 and July $1.05 3/8 to 1-2 cents.

CHICAGO LIVESTOCK
Chicago, Dec. 28.—Hog receipts 74,000. Active to shippers and small killers. Around steady with Thursday's average. Bulk desirable 235 to 240 pound butchers $7.05 to $7.15. Cattle receipts 3,000. All classes active. Killing quality rather plain. Beef steers, 12 to 25 cents higher. Sheep receipts 15,000. Fairly active. Fat lambs 15 to 25 cents lower. Sheep steady to strong.

MINNEAPOLIS FLOUR
Minneapolis, Dec. 28.—Flour unchanged. Shipments 38,564 barrels. Bran $25.50 to $27.00.

ST. PAUL LIVESTOCK
St. Paul, Dec. 28.—Cattle receipts 2,500. Slow, steady. Big packers indifferent. Buyers on steer offerings, good grade yearlings $9.50; common and medium grades $4.50 to $9.00; bulk $7.50 and down. Fat cows and heifers $3.50 to $6.00. Canners and cutters $2.25 to $3.00. Bologna bulls $3.25 to $4.25. Stockers and feeders in demand at steady prices. Bulk early sales $4.50 to $6.00. Calves receipts 1,500. Market big 50 cents higher. Best lights to packers mostly $9.00. Hog receipts 24,000. Active, averaging steady to 10 cents higher, $6.80 bid for one long well finished butcher averaging 325 pounds. Bulk good and choice 180 to 250 pound averages $6.50 to $6.75. Some lighter weights around $6.50. Packing sows mostly $6.00. Killing pigs around $6.00. Feeders $5.50 to $5.75. Sheep receipts 1,000. Few early sales to shippers fully steady, $12.50. Bid for desirable fat lambs $8.50 for good to choice lightweight ewes. Several decks of choice-fed lambs unsold.

FARM ENGINEER IS PROVIDED

Fargo, Dec. 28.—Farmers of North Dakota, who wish to build new barns, log houses, silos or other farm buildings, or who wish to install a sewerage or water-works system or to drain their fields or yards, will have the advice of a thoroughly trained farm engineer specialist at their service, after Jan. 1. It was announced yesterday by Dr. John Lee Coolter, president of the North Dakota Agricultural college.
The college is establishing a new department of agricultural engineering, and Richard C. Miller, graduate of Ames, Iowa, Agricultural college and with years of experience as a farm engineer, has been named to take charge of the work.
Mr. Miller's appointment has been approved by the board of administration. He will begin his new duties Jan. 1, and is expected in Fargo this week.

SCOTT'S EMULSION

BALL GAME PLAYED HERE DEC. 23, 1888

W. A. Falconer Locates Tribune Story Telling of Balm Day and Game

William A. Falconer, a pioneer of Bismarck, raked his memory Christmas Day for the year in which a baseball game was played in the city on Christmas Day. He looked in the files of the Bismarck Tribune and found the date he sought to remember—December 23, 1888.

The Tribune's story of that day, follows:
"With warm zephyrs and bright sunlight yesterday seemed to be the perfection which the weather has been approaching for several weeks. A spring day in the tropics, a May day in the land of the palm tree, a day in which the paradisaic balm of imaginary Edens came in a soft, sweet caressing reality to fan the fevered brow of man and toss the golden ringlets of the happy rosy maiden. On the eve of Christmas in Dakota the people are enjoying weather which is rarely given to the people of the east even in the seasons when the flowers bloom and the summer resort thrives.
"Men in their shirt sleeves were seen upon the streets, all heavy wraps were discarded and the dust which followed the passing teams suggested the propriety of bringing the street sprinkler into use again.
"The farmers who came in to do their Saturday trading informed the inquirers that they were still plowing and that many are sowing grain. To add to the genuine, summer-like character of the day, and the enjoyment thereof the base ballists met on the grounds north of the Episcopal church and played a game, which for excitement and pure, wholesome fun, has seldom been surpassed. The clubs were christened Christmas and New Year. They were composed of the following artists:
CHRISTMAS — Hutchingsen, p.; Wallace, c.; Byrne, lb.; Keeler, lf.; A. Whitaker, 2b.; Newton, 3b.; Church, ss.
NEW YEAR — Huber, p.; N. Gray, lf.; F. Whitaker, lb.; Newcomb, 2b.; B. Gray, c.; Holley, 3b.
The score was 10 to 8 in favor of the New Year team. Umpire, Wm. A. Falconer; scorer, Willie Chance.
The maximum temperature reported for this date was 50 degrees; the minimum, 15 degrees.

DREAMS BRING 50 MILLION TO DESIGNER

Had Best Dressed Doll and Later Became the Best Dressed Girl

BY JOSEPHINE VAN DE GRIFT.
NEA Service Staff Writer.
New York, Dec. 26.—Dreams of childhood are making $50,000 a year for a 24-year-old girl.
They are making her one of the country's most successful business women with a salary that the president of the country was glad to get 15 years ago.
Yet Miss Carolyn Nunder isn't quite satisfied.
She feels that she isn't getting ahead fast enough.
"That, I suppose," she says smiling, "is the impatience of youth. But it's in youth that success begins. The dreams that we have when we are young are the index to what we should do when we are old. They show where our natural talents lie before we have been warped by educators and dictated to by our elders."
In Miss Nunder's childhood these dreams were of—ruffles!
And it has been with ruffles that she has made her success.

"When I was a youngster," she says, "I had a nondescript china doll. Part of its nose had been bombed off, and one eye had vanished completely, owing to too many devoted washings. But I loved that doll and tried to make up for its deformities by dressing it prettily. I would tuck up its clothes with ruffles, and soon my doll was known as the best dressed doll in the neighborhood."
Then a few years went by and folks said Carolyn was too old to play with dolls. So she started making ruffles for herself. And soon she had the reputation of being the best dressed girl among her friends. When she was 20 her older sister became ill, and there was danger that her younger sister would have to be taken out of school. Carolyn decided that she was going to help the family out of its difficulties.
But how?
"The answer came in a flash," she says. "Ruffles!"
"I began making clothes for other persons. It was hard going at first. Sometimes I was trying to make seams meet and sometimes I was trying to make ends meet."
Business picked up. Her styles became popular.
Now the little establishment of "Carolyn Nunder, Modiste" on one of the Forties just off Fifth avenue is a humming place with 15 helpers who are busy all year 'round. And each is learning by heart their employer's rules for success.

"Follow your dreams of childhood. Create. Do the things you love to do."

TO BE CANDIDATE

Fargo, Dec. 28.—J. A. Power, of Leonard, who is in Fargo today, announced that he would be a candidate for delegate to the Republican national convention in the March presidential primary election.
Mr. Power, who is a close personal friend of President Coolidge, unquestionably will get the support of those Republicans in North Dakota who are favorable to the nomination of President Coolidge in the Republican convention of next year. Mr. Power, formerly a member of the board of regents of the state, is widely known in the state.

ACCEPTS S. D. ENDORSEMENT

SCIENTISTS
SAY MT. ELIAS IS INFANT

Has Fine Chance to Develop
Into Full Grown Mountain,
Geologists Assert

IS STILL ACTIVE

Relates History of Growth of Mountain—Forecast Possible Movement

By NEA Service
Skagway, Alaska, Dec. 28.—Mount
St. Elias is 15,000 feet high today—but wait until it's through growing!
It may get taller than Mount Mc-Kinley and even take the world-wide leadership from Mount Everest.
St. Elias is a rapidly growing little cuss. Already St. Elias is third highest of North America's peaks—and it is a mere infant, geologists declare.

One of science's favorite sports these days is watching St. Elias grow. And it is performing, too, scientists tell the world.
Mount St. Elias is in southeastern Alaska, part of the St. Elias range, which forms the boundary between American and Canadian territory.
Its lower sides and base are buried in massive glaciers, which stretch along the coast for more than 100 miles. It is just a few miles inland from Yakutat Bay. This makes St.
Elias visible from steamers traveling fairly close to shore.

Quakes Responsible
Easing from the coast through its glaciers, Mount St. Elias presents a vignette not to be found elsewhere—a sheer sweep from ocean to sky, with nothing save low lying glaciers to break the view of the mountain.
But to get back to growing mountains—

It's not the climate, geologists say, although it is admitted that perpetual snow is an asset to a peak's beauty.
Rather, it is geological formation that makes Elias grow. The St.
Elias mountains were formed by the earth's uplift involving folding and faulting. Mount St. Elias is still actively growing, growth being accomplished by movements of the earth along a series of fault lines.
Through these, the mountain block is being uplifted.

Earthquakes are the "growing pains" of the mountain's growth. In addition to sending the peak closer to the sky, these tremors have also made many changes in the Yakutat district.

"Growing Pains"
The last big growth recorded for Mount St. Elias occurred late in 1899. A cataclysmic upheaval shook a wide area in southeastern Alaska.
Apparently centered in the Yakutat region. The few whites and the natives who were fishing there at the time, declare the earthquake shocks, of unusual violence, continued for 17 days.

And Mount St. Elias grew taller as a result. Likewise, Yakutat Bay's innermost recesses were changed about.

On the shore of Disenchantment Bay closest to Mount St. Elias, the beach was raised from seven to 47 feet. On the opposite side, there was a corresponding depression. In the bay, two reefs appeared.
High above the reach of the present highest waves, the west shore shows rock benches, caves, pebbles and other evidences of seawater activities. Scattered through these are the remains of marine life, left high and dry by the upheavals. Barnacles and mussel shells are found many feet from the water, still clinging to ledges. Marine growths always below low tide level are also out of the water, while there are several lumps of driftwood, etc., some distance apart, each marking a former water level.

Sunk Elsewhere
Compensating for this rise is the depression elsewhere. As a result, a forest formerly bordering the shore line is now in the water. Waves running through the trees are beginning to kill the trees.

The U. S. Geological Survey, which sent a party of scientists to study the phenomenon, found unquestionable evidence of the mountain's growth.

In the course of a few hundred years, Mount St. Elias, at this rate, ought to be a real sizable little hunkum—while Disenchantment
Bay may be moved from Alaska to Panama.

BIG OUTPUT
IS REPORTED
BY STATE MILL

Grand Forks, N. D., Dec. 28.—Mill products to the value of $2,564,151.79 were shipped out by the North Dakota state mill here during the four months from Aug. 1 to Nov. 30, last, according to a report by C. E. Austin, general manager of the mill and elevator, which was submitted to the board of managers of the plant at the monthly meeting which adjourned
Saturday.

Shipments made during this period including the following:
Flour, valued at $1,732,715.98
Sawmills, valued at 438,884.74
Feed, valued at 332,045.83
Screenings, valued at 20,502.54
— $1,533,159.10 of Wheat Required
Mr. Austin's report showed that during the four months in question,

IT'S SURE SOME ROCK!

H. Nathan of San Francisco has a diamond worth $100,000. But he doesn't know what to do with it. Just now he's allowing Evelyn Forest to wear it while she's having her picture taken. The costly gem, set with innumerable smaller stones worth $15,000, originally was given as a decoration to a Persian military officer. Nathan bought it recently.

the mill ran practically at full capacity, and that the products turned out included 869,597 barrels of flour to which must be added the feed and other byproducts obtained. To produce this output went to the value of $1,938,398.37 was required.

The report for November showed that 91,223 barrels of flour were manufactured during that month, and that the month's sales were as follows:
Flour $443,765.50
Semolina 109,891.93
Feed 78,050.70
Screenings 5,893.73

Total $637,541.78
After viewing the report for the four months the board members expressed themselves as being well satisfied with the results shown. The business of the session was concluded Saturday afternoon and the board adjourned. The next session will be held in January.

FOOD SUPPLY
IN NO DANGER
SAYS EXPERT

Berkeley, Cal., Dec. 28.—Will the population of the world ever increase to such numbers that the food supply will run out? "No," predicts Professor C. C. Fiehn of the department of economics in the University of California.

But the professor qualifies his negative by saying that if the population of the world ever increases as fully as it has the power to, there certainly will be a shortage of food.
He explains that, as a matter of statistics, this probably never can happen, since events and conditions always intervene to prevent over-population.

Yet, he contends, in certain countries this economic over-population has occurred. He cites the annual famines in China and India, which he contends, are due to the fact that the birth rate never has been kept down in these countries and consequently the food supply proves inadequate.
"Dread diseases always follow famine in the train of excessive population and shortage of food," the professor points out, and he states further that as population increases the land is proportionately overworked.

"In America, especially, population has always been held in check.
People are made to realize the importance of keeping a balance between the population and the food supply. Farmers manage to produce enough food to satisfy everybody, even though agricultural methods improve more slowly than the population increases. The amount of effort expended in labor and making for getting food is increasing steadily, so that, although population tends to increase more rapidly than food, there never will be danger of food giving out."

ABOLISHES 3RS
FROM SCHOOLS

Installs Instead Education
With Music, Dancing, and Nature Study

By MARIAN HALE
NEA Service Writer
New York, Dec. 28.—School children have one real friend, Mrs. Marjorie L. Johnson, educator and lecturer.

She would abolish the "three R's" from the first few years of their school life.

She would do away with grades, promotions and failures, credit marks and staying after school.

She would replace these unpleasant features of education with music, dancing, nature study and the like.

And she would release father and mother from the humiliation of home work, and being obliged to adapt to their children that they have forgotten how to conjugate Latin verbs or extract cube root.

Form of Growth
"Education itself is only growth," Mrs. Johnson declares. "Therefore the school program as well as the home environment should be merely right conditions of growth."

"One of the greatest needs is that the order of the development of the nervous system shall not be violated by any work of the school. The body should be allowed wholesome freedom and all specialized activity should be postponed until a later period. This alone would mean quite a revolution in our public school system."

"The reason I would eliminate all grades and systems of promotions,"

BEAUTY

Miss Sylvia Brainerd, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Brainerd of Washington, D. C., is one of the season's most popular, and also most beautiful member of the youngster set.

"I believe that reading, writing and numbers should be postponed until the pupil is at least eight or nine years old—and possibly later—according to his physical development."

Small Classes
"The reason I would eliminate all grades and systems of promotions," she explains, "is because they make for self-consciousness and are against the health of the spirit."

"I believe that a program of self-prompted, creative activities, such as music and dancing, and initiation into the realm of nature study and the world of fantasy would provide sufficient wholesome occupation for all children of the early elementary grades."

Mrs. Johnson is director of the Fairhope Summer School at Greenwich, Conn., where she introduces many innovations in education.

STRAINING FOR ISSUES

Henry Ford's endorsement of Coolidge was bound to bring in its train the usual after clap. Hiram Johnson openly charges that it was corruptly secured through some promise of concessions or favors relative to the Muscle Shoals controversy. That charge can be dismissed almost without discussion. The integrity of Coolidge dispenses with such a vicious accusation and places more firmly than ever the accuser in the class of demagogues to which he issues his appeal. The American people are tired of this kind of recrimination, a favorite line of attack and practically the only weapon Johnson ever used to demolish opposition.

Bryan's naive statement that Ford, "the millionaire who might have championed the common people" has gone over to the side of the reactionaries because the Mellon tax plan will add more units to the automobile magnate's bank balance is in the same class with Hiram's ravings.

More straining for an issue. Bryan and in fact all democrats from Crown Prince McAdoo down hoped for some split in the republican party that would carry them into power.

Republicans who are frittering away the opportunity of their lives at Washington must realize that unless all precedents are upset that it is Coolidge in 1924 or a democrat. The sooner they get behind the administration and show some inclination to relieve the people of burdensome taxes, the better. Voting with democrats to embarrass the administration is not strengthening the little clique who prate about progressive victories. They are digging their own political graves. The democrats, be it said to their credit, in large numbers refuse to join in the silly fight against Senator Cummins. The radicals by blocking his appointment as head of the Interstate Commerce committee cannot change any policy of this administration toward the railroads and why any democrat should seek responsibility in this instance is quite incomprehensible.

The people are showing signs of great impatience over the costly delays of putting into effect a plan that will enable business to get back to a solid basis and we mean by business not the so called "big" business but all kinds of industrial endeavor, whether of factory or of farm.

North Dakota's delegation at Washington does not do so better in this crisis than to uphold a plan that will relieve their constituents of some of the taxation which is slowing up development in this state. The plan means a boon and bonus to every man, woman and child in this state.

Voters of North Dakota do not know whether Cummins heads that delegation or not. If Follette's will as far as a majority, North Dakota's delegation goes is stronger than any other in this state.

It would be a good move for voters to make the North Dakota delegation that they are more in line with the man'smanship action than in cheap political filibuster.

LIMITED INQUIRY

Legislative haste to do something designated an Educational Commission, then tied its hands by failing to provide an appropriation and limited its scope of inquiry to the common and high schools. As far as tax spending goes the higher institutions of learning are the major offenders and there should have been no limitations set, no bars put up around any educational activity. In effect the legislature should have said, make a complete survey and study of the educational situation from a practical standpoint and report ways and means of securing greater efficiency and if possible reduced expenditures.

Just how the commission can operate without funds remains to be seen. Probably some data can be gained by summoning heads of various activities to Bismarck. But the problem is of such magnitude that no great headway can be made under the restrictions imposed by the legislature.

There would be great merit now in a general survey of all state expenditures with a view to reducing tax budgets. There is an imperfect budget system in the state functioning through a legislative committee, but time allowed is short and the field most complicated.

E. J. Taylor, a member of the Educational Commission and for many years identified with the educational system of the state, points out in a recent letter just how limited the inquiry can be. But it is best stated in his own words in a letter to the Fargo Forum:

"In last Saturday's Forum appeared a very excellent editorial on the Educational Commission which Governor Nestos recently appointed. In order that the people of this state may not expect too much of this commission I should like very much to have you give this letter to the public. In your editorial you stated 'that the task of the commission is one of some magnitude.' I certainly agree with this statement. When the legislature enacted the resolution authorizing the Governor to appoint this commission no appropriation was made. The members of the commission are expected to donate their time and to pay all their own expenses. The legislature did not provide so much as a postage stamp for carrying on the work of this commission, which you very properly say is a task of 'some magnitude.' The members of the commission are all busy people and have their own affairs to look after and duties to perform. In view of the fact that the services are to be performed gratuitously and the commission pay its expenses, I would ask the people not to expect too much of the commission. Just what will be accomplished will be determined later.

"Unfortunately the legislature limited the scope of inquiry to be made by the commission to the common and high schools. It would have been possible to have secured a much better report had the inquiry extended to the higher educational institutions.

"I also am a little surprised that the legislature would create a commission to study the ways and means of reducing the expenses in one of the great departments of our state government and not include all others. A general survey of the receipts and expenditures of the state including not only the educational system, but all departments, I believe, would result in great good to North Dakota. The people should be thoroughly informed as to the amount of money collected in taxes by the state and its different subdivisions and also as to the disbursements of the same and the things that they are getting in return for their money."

EDITORIAL REVIEW

CORN AND THE HORN OF PLENTY

Corn occupies a very important place in the Northwest's horn of plenty. In fact, the name corn derives from the Latin word for horn, and when it is well cultivated it spells plenty and prosperity. Minneapolis has, it appears, stepped into second place among the cash corn markets of the country and at times crowds Chicago for first place.

The extended and successful raising of corn in the Northwest is a notable triumph for science applied to agriculture. Over a century of experimentation and study have developed the old Indian maize into one of the Nation's great crops. The climatic adaptability of corn has been greatly extended, so that it is now possible to grow it much farther north than could be done twenty-five years ago.

Corn-raising, in fact, has become a science. It has been amply demonstrated that the planting of improved seed corn pays in productivity. Larger returns are secured from high quality seed corn with the same effort and expense than are yielded by ordinary and inferior grades.

In the past ten years the study of samples, the selection of seed and the keeping of records have improved greatly not only the size of the corn kernels but their hardiness and adaptability to the climate. The elimination of bad seeds and suckers, the well filled butts and tips come from pedigreed strains, much as improved livestock comes from pedigreed animals. Great advance has been made in the storing of corn, conservation of soil moisture and methods of cultivation. Corn-raising has thus become a specialized science within the general science of agriculture.

Its new place in the horn of plenty is also a promising step toward diversified agriculture. Corn and stock go together.

The extended acreage of corn-growing and perfected methods of its cultivation assure it a permanent and very important place among the staple crops of the country. It lends itself to many uses. The wheat and corn belt of the Northwest is the front rank of the great grain markets of the Nation—Minneapolis Journal.

ADVENTURE OF THE TWINS

By Olive Roberts Barton

It was the middle of the night in Daddy Gander Land, and everybody was asleep, or should have been.

It was perfectly evident that someone was asleep however, for such soundings were never heard. But the twins were so tired after their long journey in the magic dust-pan, and after the excitement of Master and Miss Sprats' visit, they didn't hear a thing. Each one slept in his funny little bed in the funny little Christmas-tree house, as though his life depended on it.

But it is queer how great big sounds won't waken us sometimes, and very little sounds do.

Something was squeaking! Nancy opened her eyes and sat up in bed, and then Nick opened his eyes and sat up. It was very dark everywhere, but Daddy Gander, kind old fellow that he was, kept lanterns hung at all the street corners in Daddy Gander Land, and one teeny weeny ray came across Bo Peep's front yard and in at one of the side windows of the Christmas-tree house.

Neither of the twins said a word, but just listened and looked. By and by they heard a rustle and another squeak and then they saw the waste-basket move. The first thing they knew the waste-basket fell over with a plof! And out fell a little gray mouse. He began to pull and tug at something, and by the dim light of the lantern, the twins made out the lumpy form of a gingerbread-man.

Somebody had taken a bite out of the gingerbread-man. A whole foot was missing. Also one raisin eye! But the rest of him was all there and he was twice as big as the mouse. Mister Mouse was having a time of it.

Daddy Gander had stuck his head in after he had said good-night. "You don't mind if I leave my magic dust-pan here till morning, do you, my dears?" he said. And he laid it carefully on the hearth right beside the waste-basket.

The mouse gave an extra hard tug, and the gingerbread-man gave a flop and landed right in the middle of the dust-pan.

Instantly a wonderful thing happened. The gingerbread-man began to come alive. Then he stepped off the magic dust-pan. Or rather he hopped off, for one foot was gone. But then, his legs were baked together so one foot was as good as two, anyway. And the little mouse got scared and ran away.

"Now if I only had my other eye," he said merrily. "I'd be as good as new."

"Oh, I'll fix that!" cried Nancy. And she jumped out of bed and ran to the cupboard and got another raisin. "I'll stick it in with a little sirup," she said.

"Thank you!" said the gingerbread-man. "And now do you and your brother want to help me to do something?"

"We sure do!" cried Nick, jumping out of bed and reaching for his clothes.

The Tangle

Tom Sims Says

LETTER FROM LESLIE PRESCOTT TO LESLIE PRESCOTT,
CONTINUED

From the look Ruth gave me, little Marquise, when I told her of my suspicions about Sydney Carton, I understood she was too dazed to speak.

"Yes, I know, dear," I began, "you never knew I was a pessimistic philosopher before, did you? You are neither in the habit of hearing my voice pessimistic philosophy about love and life, or suspicion of my friends. Yet you, as well as I, know that every woman is more or less of a moralist. She not only analyzes her own actions and reactions, but she tries, usually mistakenly, to analyze her husband's actions and reactions."

"In all the years that have come and gone since Adam and Eve made their exodus from the garden there has never been anything in common in the actions and reactions of men and women."

"No two persons of different sex, no matter how closely they are bound together, ever live under the same conditions. I have my own standards which I know are very different from Jack's."

"I have heard you say many times, Ruth, that you wish you could solve the whys and wherefores of marriage. Of course being a woman like yourself, I knew that you did not mean why the church and state say marriage is not only a lawful but a respectable state. What you were trying to get at was just why two people who are perfectly mad—as we say—about each other before marriage cannot live happily together afterward, and what seems the very climax and fruition of love seems to be the very thing which makes for discord and death of it."

"The whole truth of the matter is that we expect too much of marriage; marriage, which is usually built upon a tissue of lies. We are not truthful with ourselves nor with those we love and we expect from all the foolishly acted and senselessly spoken untruth to bring forth truth."

"We might as well expect to bring forth a healthy child from parents with diseased bodies."

"From marriage we expect a succession of thrills that will turn the monotony of life into something of which we vaguely dream but never realize."

"Sometimes, Ruth, I have an almost irresistible desire for once to be myself with Jack, for once to tell the truth as I am telling it now. I wonder what he would do if I should go to him this minute and explain the whole thing; tell him about the pearls; ask him about the baby; tell him just what I have done and ask him to tell me just what he has done. I mean all those things which neither of us have told each other."

"I don't think he would understand, dear, Leslie," said Ruth slowly, "and, dear, I don't think you would understand either. That is the only thing that married people know about married life. Each knows that the other is full of misunderstanding."

EVERETT TRUE

BY CONDO

MOSTLY ABOUT BOOKS

BY JAMES W. DEAN.

New York, Dec. 28.—One of the wonders of the present age is the complete harmony, or at least the outward semblance of it, with which the positive, opinionated minds of H. L. Mencken and George Jean Nathan work.

The newest collaboration is "The American Mercury," a monthly review which is now making its first bow to the public. In this you are likely to find discussion of poetry and politics, social and scientific, aesthetics and aesthetics, ships and sailing war. But now new mark is left where the pens of Mencken and Nathan scratch. They are simply working in a larger pasture.

The editorial setting forth the purpose and policy of the new magazine covers three-and-a-half pages of closely set type. All of it is clever and most of it means nothing. In effect they say that their purpose is to isolate individual prophets from the herd and to follow the ponderous revolutions of the mass mind, to attempt a "readable presentation of the whole gaudy, gorgeous American scene."

Mencken and Nathan are at once high prophets of tolerance and antagonists of the views of any one in the "Booming Forties" before she went to the hospital for four years; and who knew them better after she went to the hospital. I quote from her new book, "Right Off the Chest": "It is the White Way because it pulsates with the milk of human kindness. I have drunk deeply of that nectar, and I have never been as proud as I am today that I can call myself a member of both the glorious worlds of ink and of paint that meet and mingle on that street. It is a double citizenship worth staying alive to enjoy."

Intolerance springs from ignorance. We condemn only what we half understand, believing that we have a complete understanding.

Thus you have heard it said that there's a broken heart for every light on Broadway. The Great White Way where Moths fly too close to the Candle, where Every Fellow is out for Himself.

However, you haven't listened to Nellie Revell who knew almost every one in the "Booming Forties" before she went to the hospital for four years; and who knew them better after she went to the hospital.

Forty Club Decorations Are Beautiful

The weather yesterday added all that was needed to make the Christmas Party of the Forty Club. A glimpse into Patterson Hall, revealed a veritable fairyland, the lights being subdued with the red and green of the holiday season.

The committee in charge of the decorations provided a very elegant and well-planned original scheme of decorating. In using the forty Christmas trees, the rear of the hall was bathed with snow and evergreens to provide a dining booth. The tables were laid in white and decorated with the red candles and poinsettias. Garland of evergreens were draped around the entire hall and large holly wreaths hung over each fire place. In the center of the hall, a large canopy was suspended from the ceiling. The orchestra was screened by a bower of evergreen and holly. That part of the hall used for dancing was made especially beautiful by the green and white lights, giving the woodland effect. Between thirty-five and forty couples were present at one of the most delightful parties of the season.

LOCAL BISMARCK MAN WEDS.
Announcement has been made of the marriage of Miss Alma Johnson of Bismarck, Minnesota, and Andrew Masson of Bismarck. They were married in Fargo, December 22, by Rev. W. C. Hagen, pastor of the First Methodist church. The service was read at six P. M. in the presence of the church.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Masson were former Fargo residents and were connected for a time with the Fred W. Kibben company of that city. They came to Bismarck Wednesday to make their home. Mr. Masson is with the A. W. Lucas company.

AT THE MOVIES

CAPITOL.
There may be nothing new under the sun, but Tom Mix's latest film spectacle, "The Last of the Mohicans," is a close approach to it. He appears in "Soft Boiled," his first special release, presented by William Fox, in a role so different that he has attempted to be surprised even himself. "Soft Boiled" comes to the Capitol Theatre for three days opening Monday.

No picture starring Tom Mix would be complete without Tony, his wonder horse. In "Soft Boiled" Tony plays his usual prominent part with his usual intelligence. He is the first to find his master's car, and he is the first to be surprised in many of the scenes. Expecting, course, traps, soft chair, spurs and sombrero, Tony encountered Tom Mix in checkered "city clothes" and spats. It may have been indignation or surprise that caused Tony to rear viciously when he glimpsed this, but it was equine intelligence that brought a horse home whinny when he saw the horse-stomping avenger.

THE BLINKE.
"Tiger Rose" showing at the Eltinge theatre today and tomorrow is a picture story of the Canadian Northwest with Lenore Utie who played the same part in David Belasco's stage production of the play, appearing as "Tiger Rose." Sam DeGrasse, Claude Gillingwater and Forrest Stanley are also seen in the Eltinge program, also includes Pathé News and a Fighting Blood story, "Long Live the King."

WINTER COUGHS AND COLDS.
With the changeable weather which we have at this season of the year coughs and colds are very prevalent. Be prepared for them. Have a bottle of FOLEY'S HONEY AND TAR COMPOUND handy, and with the first sign of a cough or cold take a dose and prevent a serious ailment. FOLEY'S HONEY AND TAR COMPOUND has been the standard family cough remedy for over 35 years, bringing prompt relief and when once used you will never be without it.

The house guests being Miss Emma McGarvey, now of Billings, Mont., and Mrs. and Mrs. A. L. Night of Crosby, N. D. Mrs. Night was remembered as having been a guest of the Schaefer family during the holiday season. Four tables of cards were in play, the hosts going to Mr. and Mrs. Night. At the close of the game delicious refreshments were served.

BIRTHDAY PARTY.
Mrs. J. N. Roberts planned a most pleasant and complete surprise in honor of her husband's birthday. The party was held at the Roberts home on Main avenue Thursday evening. The house guests being Miss Emma McGarvey, now of Billings, Mont., and Mrs. and Mrs. A. L. Night of Crosby, N. D. Mrs. Night was remembered as having been a guest of the Schaefer family during the holiday season. Four tables of cards were in play, the hosts going to Mr. and Mrs. Night. At the close of the game delicious refreshments were served.

CHRISTMAS SURPRISE PARTY.
Friends of the Joe Birch family of Baldwin pleasantly surprised them on Christmas day. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Laurence Zander and family, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Firth and family, Mr. and Mrs. Nick Blashaw and son Mike, Elias Aaland and Herman Hennings, all of Wilton. Mr. Levi Carlson of Baldwin, and Miss Rose Sorech of Bismarck. The large Christmas dinner was the chief feature of the day.

MARRIED.

UNIFORM MARRIAGE-DIVORCE CODE

Womens Clubs Seek Correction of Present Conflicting Laws

MRS. E. F. WHITE (LEFT) AND MISS LIDA HAFORD, LEADERS IN NATIONAL UNIFORM MARRIAGE AND DIVORCE CODE MOVEMENT.

BY HARRY B. HUNT.
NEA Service-Writer.
Washington, Dec. 23.—Forty-nine marriage laws and no two alike. "Conflicting divorce laws which make children by second marriages, legitimate in some states, illegitimate in others and men and women lawfully married in some states bigamists in others."

"This situation presents a problem which the women of the United States must see solved," says Miss Lida Haford, director of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, who will have charge of the fight for a nationally uniform marriage and divorce code.

"Senators and representatives agree that, socially, this condition is intolerable," Miss Haford adds. "But, politically, the right of the individual states to fix their own marriage and divorce laws must not be infringed, they contend, even though this state right results in a national 'wrong'."

"Our problem, therefore, is to impress on congressmen the view that human rights are above state rights."

Prominent Marriage Laws.
The need of uniform marriage and divorce laws may be understood from a study of the conflicting laws now in force. Take the laws governing marriage.

Seventeen states have no legal marriageable age.

In nine states the common-law age of 12 for girls and 14 for boys is formally recognized and two states fix the marriageable age at 13 for girls and 14 for boys. In one state it is 13 for girls and 14 for boys while three states permit the marriage of girls of 16 without parental consent.

Twenty states prescribe no penalty for issuing a certificate of marriage to a minor below the specified age without parents' consent. In three states a marriage license is not needed if the marriage has been announced previously by banns. Only five states require both parties to apply in person for a license.

Eighteen states do not forbid marriage of feeble-minded and 33 do not definitely forbid marriage between blacks and whites.

The Divorce Tangle.
The conditions governing divorce are no less varied.

One state permits divorce on 14 grounds while one state does not permit divorce on any ground. Between these extremes the grounds for divorce range from three to 11. Requirements for legal residence are as varied. In many states this is purely perfunctory.

two weeks in advance; both parties to be present. Notice of application published.

2.—Marriageable age, with consent of parents, 16 for girls, 18 for boys, legal age, without consent, 18 for girls, 21 for boys.

3.—Marriage of imbeciles, insane, feeble minded, epileptics, paupers or persons afflicted with tuberculosis or venereal disease or relatives as close as first cousins, forbidden.

4.—Divorces only on grounds of adultery, cruel or inhuman treatment, failure to provide for one year, incurable insanity, and commission by either party of infamous crime. No divorces where evidence exists that grounds have been provided by collusion.

5.—Defendants in divorce proceedings must appear or be represented in court. A divorce granted in one state shall be recognized in all.

INJUNCTION IS ISSUED

St. Paul, Dec. 23.—Federal Judges Wilbur F. Booth and John F. McGee issued a temporary injunction restraining the internal revenue department from operation of its "tax collector" in Minnesota through which the department sought to levy taxes on illegal manufacture and sale of liquor.

The ruling is declared to affect the whole scheme of the internal revenue department to establish similar "courts" or procedure throughout the country, and officials at Washington have been awaiting the decision with interest, deploring representative here said.

BETTER THAN SILK.
Lingerie of fine linen, bound with narrow bands of colored linen, is more fascinating than silk in many cases.

RUFFLED BLOOMERS.
Ruffled bloomers for the child are decidedly new and away with the necessity of petticoats.

TAFFETA SHAWLS.
Taffeta shawls are very quaint and lovely, particularly when they have roses or other flowers scattered over the surface.

EMBROIDERED IN BACK.
A French gown that is original is not only else is embroidered solidly in the back and is guileless of any decorations in the front.

GORGEOUS LINING.
Gold and silver lame are sometimes used to line the more elaborate coats and capes of black velvet or wool.

FUR-EDGED VEILS.
Fur-edged lace veils are a sartorial novelty introduced recently on the small satin toques.

SUEDE PUMPS.

Once let constipation get a grip on you, and your system will be open to 90% of human ailments. Statistics show that to be the proportion of illness that has constipation for a starting point. Pills and cathartics are as dangerous to the system as constipation!

Your physician will recommend Kellogg's Bran, because it is nature's own relief from constipation. It is scientifically prepared to relieve suffering humanity from constipation and it will do what no other food can do. It will give every sufferer permanent relief if it is eaten regularly—at least two tablespoons daily; as much with each meal in chronic cases!

Kellogg's Bran is wonderful in its natural, positive action. It sweeps and cleanses and purifies the bowel tract; it scours out the dangerous toxic poisons; it puts you back on schedule time without irritation or discomfort!

Don't delay eating Kellogg's Bran each day in some form! Try it as a cereal sprinkled over your favorite hot or cold cereal or cook it with hot cereals. In the latter case, add two tablespoons for each person and mix with the regular cereal and cook as usual.

Kellogg's Bran is simply delicious made into muffins, popovers, raisin bread, macaroons, pancakes, etc. Recipes are on every package! For health's sake get some Kellogg's Bran immediately. All grocers.

WARNING SENT HONDURAS BY U. S. OFFICIALS

View With Disfavor Attempt to Keep Power Except by Constitutional Means

Washington, Dec. 23.—The American minister at Tegucigalpa has been instructed to inform the president of Honduras and responsible officials of that government that the United States regards with disfavor any attempt of a government to perpetuate itself in power except by accepted constitutional processes. The communication was sent by the state department as a result of the disturbances in Honduras incident to the presidential election.

At the same time, the department communicated to the representatives in the other four Central American republics, a summary of its instructions to Minister Morales at Tegucigalpa, and expressed the hope that nothing would develop in or between the five republics which would disrupt the concord reached by them at the conference held here several months ago.

Nicaragua has dispatched a vigorous protest to Honduras as a result of a reported raid by Honduran troops into Nicaraguan territory.

Detailed information regarding the incident is lacking here, but in some Latin American quarters there is a fear that the situation may lead to serious international consequences.

That part of the hall used for dancing was made especially beautiful by the green and white lights, giving the woodland effect. Between thirty five and forty couples were present at one of the most delightful parties of the season.

LOCAL BISMARCK MAN WEDS
Announcement has been made of the marriage of Miss Alma Johnson of Bismarck, Minnesota, and Andrew Masson of Bismarck. They were married in Fargo, December 24, by Rev. W. C. Henderson, pastor of the First Methodist church. The service was read at six P. M. in the parsonage of the church.
Both Mr. and Mrs. Masson were former Fargo residents and were connected for a time with the Fred W. Kluwe company of this city. They came to Bismarck Wednesday to make their home. Mr. Masson is with the A. W. Lucas company.

ENTERTAIN.
Miss Dorothy Schneider, Mrs. John Forister, and Mrs. F. G. Schneider were joint hostesses at a winter party at the Schneider home on Main avenue Thursday evening. The honor guests being Miss Emma McGarvey, now of Billings, Mont., and Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Light of Crosby, N. D. Mr. Light will be remembered as Miss Katherine McGarvey. The home was attractively decorated in keeping with the holiday season. Four tables of cards were in play, the honor going to Mr. and Mrs. Light. At the close of the game delicious refreshments were served.

BIRTHDAY PARTY.
Mrs. J. N. Roberts planned a most pleasant and complete surprise in honor of her husband's birthday. The occasion was celebrated at the home of Mrs. Roberts. The party was held at midnight and a delightful luncheon was served with the birthday cake and candles forming an effective centerpiece. Mr. Roberts was presented with a number of beautiful gifts to remind him of the occasion. The home was decorated in keeping with the holiday season, a beautiful Christmas tree being the important feature.

CHRISTMAS SURPRISE PARTY.
Friends of the Joe Soreh family of Baldwin pleasantly surprised them on Christmas Day. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Laurence Soreh and family, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Firth and family, Mr. and Mrs. Nick Blankens and son Mike, Elias Aaland and Herman Hennig, all of Wilton. Mr. Levi Carlson of Baldwin, and Miss Rose Soreh of Bismarck. The large Christmas dinner was the chief feature of the day.

CAPITOL.
There may be nothing new under the sun, but Tom Mix behind horsemanship spectacles, wearing the latest garb from the shelf of a second-hand store, is a close approach to it. He appears in "Soft Boiled," his first special release, presented by William Fox, in a role so different than he has attempted that he surprised even himself. "Soft Boiled" comes to the Capitol Theatre for three days, opening Monday.
No picture starring Tom Mix would be complete without Tony, his wonder horse. In "Soft Boiled" Tony plays his usual prominent part with his usual intelligence, despite the fact that he found his master scarcely recognizable in many of the scenes. Expecting coarse, cheap, soft-shirted spurs and sombrero, Tony encountered Tom Mix in checkered "city clothes" and spats. It may have been indignation or surprise that caused Tony to rear viciously when he glimpsed this, but it was equine intelligence that brought a hoarse horse whinny when he saw the horn-rimmed goggles.

THE ELTINGE.
"Tiger Rose" showing at the Eltinge theatre today and tomorrow is a picture story of the Canadian Northwest with Lenore Ulric who played the same part in David Belasco's stage production of the play, appearing as "Tiger Rose." Edna DeGrasse, Claude Gillingwater and Forrest Stanley are also seen in the cast. In addition to the picture the Eltinge program also includes Paths News and a Fighting Blood story "Long Live the King."

WINTER COUGHS AND COLDS.
With the changeable weather which we have at this season of the year coughs and colds are very prevalent. Be prepared for them. Have a bottle of FOLEY'S HONEY AND TAR COMPOUND handy, and with the first sign of a cough or cold take a dose and prevent a serious ailment. FOLEY'S HONEY AND TAR COMPOUND has been the standard family cough remedy for over 35 years, bringing prompt relief and when once used you will never be without it.

Wesleyan Chapel in Mawman, Cornwall, England, opened, Jan. 1, 1924, had its first marriage ceremony only recently.

UNIFORM MARRIAGE-DIVORCE CODE

Womens Clubs Seek Correction of Present Conflicting Laws

MRS. E. F. WHITE (LEFT) AND MISS LIDA HAFKORD, LEADERS IN "NATIONAL UNIFORM MARRIAGE AND DIVORCE CODE" MOVEMENT.

BY HARRY B. HUNT.
NEA Service Writer.
Washington, Dec. 28.—Forty-nine marriage laws and no two alike. "Conflicting divorce laws which make children by second marriages, while legitimate in some states, illegitimate in others and men and women lawfully married in some states bigamists in others."
This situation presents a problem which the women of the United States must see solved, says Miss Lida Hafford, director of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, who will have charge of the fight for a nationally uniform marriage and divorce code.

"Senators and representatives agree that, actually, this condition is intolerable," Miss Hafford adds. "But, politically, the right of the individual states to fix their own marriage and divorce laws must not be infringed, they contend, even though this state right results in a national wrong."
"Our problem, therefore, is to impress on congressmen the view that human rights are above state rights."

Present Marriage Laws.
The need of uniform marriage and divorce laws may be understood from a study of the conflicting laws now in force. Take the laws governing marriage.
Seventeen states have no legal marriageable age.
In nine states the common-law age of 12 for girls and 14 for boys is formally recognized and two states fix the marriageable age at 12 for girls and 14 for boys. In one state it is 13 for girls and 14 for boys while three states permit the marriage of girls of 16 without parental consent.
Twenty states prescribe a penalty for issuing a certificate of marriage to a minor below the specified age without parents' consent. In three states a marriage license is not needed if the marriage has been announced previously by banns. Only five states require both parties to apply in person for a license.
Eighteen states do not forbid marriage of feeble-minded and 33 do not definitely forbid marriage between blacks and whites.

The Divorce Tangle.
The conditions governing divorce are no less varied.
One state permits divorce on 14 grounds while one state does not permit divorce on any ground. Between these extremes the grounds for divorce range from three to 11. Requirements for legal residence are as varied. In many states this is purely perfunctory.
The results of these laws present many ludicrous, many tragic pictures.

Innocent parties have been divorced when they have not even known that their husbands or wives were suing them. One state may set aside divorces secured elsewhere because of illegal residence or service claims. Persons thus divorced are remarried, thinking they were free to do so, and have had children by these second marriages, only to find these children, by the annulment of the second marriage, illegitimate.

INJUNCTION IS ISSUED

St. Paul, Dec. 28.—Federal Judges Wilbur F. Booth and John F. McGee issued a temporary injunction restraining the internal revenue department from operation of its "excise tax court" in Minnesota, through which the department sought to levy taxes on illegal manufacture and sale of liquor.
The ruling is declared to affect the whole scheme of the internal revenue department to establish similar "courts" or procedure throughout the country, and officials at Washington have been awaiting the decision with interest, department representative here said.

BETTER THAN SILK

Lingerie of fine linen, bound with narrow bands of colored linen is more fascinating than silk in many cases.
RUFFLED BLOOMERS.
Ruffled bloomers for the child are decidedly new and do away with the necessity of petticoats.
TAFETTA SHAWLS.
Taffeta shawls are very quaint and lovely, particularly when they have roses or other flowers scattered over the surface.
EMBROIDERED IN BACK.
A French gown that is original in no other else is embroidered solidly in the back and is guileless of any decorations in the front.
GORGEOUS LINING.
Gold and silver lame are sometimes used to line the more elaborate coats and capes of black velvet or wool.
FUR-EDGED VEILS.
Fur-edged lace veils are a sartorial novelty introduced recently on the small scale in toques.
SUEDE PUMPS.
Suede pumps to match the costumes are almost the rule this season.
PONGEE PAJAMAS.
Pajamas of pongee, bound with several bands of brilliantly colored ribbon, are both serviceable and attractive.

The Model Law.
Chief provisions of the bill are:
1—No marriage without a license for which application must be made

two weeks in advance; both parties to be present. Notice of application published.
2—Marriageable age, with consent of parents, 16 for girls, 18 for boys, legal age, without consent, 18 for girls, 21 for boys.
3—Marriage of imbeciles, insane, feeble minded, epileptics, paupers or persons afflicted with tuberculosis or venereal disease or relatives as close as first cousins, forbidden.
4—Divorces only on grounds of adultery, cruel or inhuman treatment, failure to provide for one year, incurable insanity, and commission by either party of infamous crime. No divorces where evidence exists that grounds have been provided by collusion.
5—Defendants in divorce proceedings must appear or be represented in court. A divorce granted in one state shall be recognized in all.

Prepared for Best.
"Enactment of a national uniform marriage and divorce law will do justice to all—rich or poor, young or old, male or female," comments Miss Hafford. "And, above all, justice to the children!" she adds.
"Such a law has been drafted by Mrs. Edward Franklin White of Indianapolis, legislative chairman of the General Federation of Women's Clubs and assistant attorney general of Indiana. It will be introduced in Congress, probably by Senator Capper in the Senate and Representative Fairchild in the House."

Seven national organizations are lined up behind the proposal. These are:
General Federation of Women's Clubs, National League of Women Voters, National Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teachers Association, Women's Christian Temperance Union, American Home Economics Association, National Federation of Business and Professional Women, and Daughters of the American Revolution.

Washington, Dec. 28.—The American minister at Tegucigalpa has been instructed to inform the president of Honduras and responsible officials of that government that the United States regards with disfavor any attempt of a government to usurp its own constitutionally established powers. The communication was sent by the state department as a result of the disturbances in Honduras incident to the presidential election.
At the same time, the department communicated to its representatives in the other four Central American republics, a statement of its instructions to Minister Morales at Tegucigalpa, and expressed the hope that nothing would develop in or between the five republics which would disrupt the concord reached by them at the conference held here several months ago.
Nicaragua has dispatched a vigorous protest to the state department as a result of a reported raid by Honduran troops into Nicaraguan territory.
Detailed information regarding the incident is lacking here, but in some Latin American quarters there is a fear that the situation may lead to serious international consequences.

At St. Paul, the North Dakota young people will join a delegation of 70 students of the University of Minnesota who are going to the convention.

Delegates from the university who left last evening are: Vernie Aldrich, Dorothy McNeil, Katherine Brad, Marie Elvick, Maurice Ryan, Henry Horton and Chas. Appel, of Grand Forks, Mildred Gjer of Canby, Ralph Finkle, Lisbon; Reginald Smart, Minot; Alvin Thorson, Mattson; Oliver Peterson, Minot; Elizabeth Airheart, Fargo; and Marjorie Watt, Larimore.

Other delegates from North Dakota were expected to leave from Fargo, Mayville, Minot and Jamestown.

Leave in a Body

Grand Forks, Dec. 28.—Fourteen students of the state university and one student of the Lutheran Bible school, left last evening in a group for Fargo where they will join other North Dakota delegates to the Student Volunteer convention at Indianapolis on December 28 to January 1.

Rev. A. D. Haupt, pastor of St. Mark's Evangelical Lutheran church and one of the student pastors at the university, will join the delegation at St. Paul, where he spent Christmas with his family. Others who will accompany the delegation to Indianapolis are: Prof. H. J. Witten and Clifford Holland of the state university. Mr. Holland will head the state delegation.

CORN AND THE HORN OF PLENTY

Corn occupies a very important place in the Northwest's horn of plenty. In fact, the name corn derives from the Latin word for horn, and when it is well cultivated it spells plenty and prosperity. Minnesota has, it appears, stepped into second place among the cash corn markets of the country and at times crowds Chicago for first place.

The extended and successful raising of corn in the Northwest is a notable triumph for science applied to agriculture. Over a century of experimentation and study have developed the old Indian maize into one of the Nation's great crops. The climatic adaptability of corn has been greatly extended, so that it is now possible to grow it much farther north than could be done twenty-five years ago.

Corn-raising, in fact, has become a science. It has been amply demonstrated that the planting of improved seed corn pays in productivity. Larger returns are secured from high quality seed corn with the same effort and expense than are yielded by ordinary and inferior grades.

In the past ten years the study of samples, the selection of seed and the keeping of records have improved greatly not only the size of the corn kernels but their hardiness and adaptability as well. The elimination of barren stalks and suckers, the well filled butts and tigh come from pedigreed strains, much as improved livestock comes from pedigreed animals. Great advance has been made in the storing of corn, conservation of soil moisture and methods of cultivation. Corn-raising has thus become a specialized science within the general science of agriculture. Its new place in the horn of plenty is also a promising step toward diversified agriculture. Corn and stock go together.

The extended acreage of corn-growing and perfected methods of its cultivation assure it a permanent and very important place in the staple crops of the country. It lends itself to many uses and it may be depended on to keep Minnesota in the front rank of the great primary markets of the Northwest.

The Flivver That Flivvered

The Tangle

From the look Ruth gave me, Little Marquise, when I told her of my suspicions about Sydney Carton, I understood she was too dazed to speak.

"Yes, I know, dear," I began, "you never knew I was a pessimistic philosopher before, did you? You are neither in the habit of hearing, nor even a pessimistic philosophy about love and life, or suspicion of my friends. Yet you, as well as I, know that every woman is more or less of a moralist. She not only analyzes her own actions and reactions, but she tries, usually mistakenly, to analyze her husband's actions and reactions."

"In all the years that have come and gone since Adam and Eve made their exodus from the garden there has never been anything in common in the actions and reactions of men and women."

"No two persons of different sex, no matter how closely they are bound together, ever live under the same conditions. I have my own standards which I know are very different from Jack's."

"I have heard you say many times, Ruth, that you wish you could solve the why's and wherefore's of marriage. Of course being a woman like yourself, I know that you did not mean why the church and state say marriage is not only a lawful but a respectable state. What you were trying to get at was just why two people who are perfectly mad-as we say-about each other before marriage cannot live happily together afterward, and what seems the very climax and fruition of love seems to be the very thing which makes for discord and death of it."

"The whole truth of the matter is that we expect too much of marriage; marriage, which is usually built upon a dream of life. We are not truthful with ourselves nor with those we love and we expect from all the foolishly acted and senselessly spoken untruth to bring forth truth."

"We might as well expect to bring forth a healthy child from parents with diseased bodies."

"From marriage we expect a succession of thrills that will turn the monotony of life into something of which we vaguely dream but never realize."

"Sometimes, Ruth, I have an almost irresistible desire for once to be myself with Jack, for once to tell the truth as I am telling it now. I wonder what he would do if I should go to him this minute and explain the whole thing; tell him about the pearls; ask him about the baby; tell him just what I have done and ask him to tell me all the things which neither of us have told each other."

"I don't think he would understand, Leslie," said Ruth slowly, "and, dear, I don't think you would understand either. That is the only thing that married people know about married life. Each knows that the other is full of misunderstanding."

NOTES ABOUT BOOKS

BY JAMES W. DEAN.
New York, Dec. 28.—One of the wonders of the present age is the complete harmony, or at least the outward semblance of it, with which the positive, opinionated minds of H. L. Mencken and George Jean Nathan work.

The newest collaboration is "The American Mercury," a monthly review which is now making its first bow to the public. In this you are likely to find discussion of poetry and politics, socialism and sociology, arithmetic and aesthetics; ships and sailing was. But now new mark is left where the pens of Mencken and Nathan scratch. They are simply working in a larger poetry.

The editorial setting forth the purpose and policy of the new magazine covers three-and-a-half pages of closely set type. All of it is clever and most of it means nothing. In effect they say that their purpose is to isolate individual projects from the herd and to follow the modern, to account a "modern" presentation of the whole gaudy, gaudy American scene.

Mencken and Nathan are at once high prophets of tolerance and antagonists of the views of any one group of persons. Their tolerance is only for individuals. It is usually, however, the high virtue of this new enterprise is that it safeguards freedom of thought. It is not for persons of settled habit of thought. It will prove of great value to those who feel that their minds are still in a formative state.

Intolerance springs from ignorance. We condemn only what we half understand, believing that we have a complete understanding.

Thus you have heard it said that there's a broken heart for every light on Broadway. The "American Mercury" where Mencken and Nathan are out for blood.

However, you have listened to Nellie Bly who has written every one in the "Boasting Party" before she went to the hospital for four years and who knew them better after she went to the hospital. "Right On the Chest" by H. L. Mencken. "The Last of the Vikings" by John Bojer.

To soothe a nervous and quiet mind Elizabeth Robbins' "Time is Whistling" and Joseph Conrad's "The Rover."

In addition to these I am glad to have made the acquaintance of "Jazzman" by H. L. Mencken. "A Son at the Front," "Woods," "Fortune's Fool," "Paint Perfection," "The Able McLaughlins," "Curtain Conquer," "Jazz March," "Stephen Crane," "The Doctor Looks at Literature," "Bunk," "Mr. Fogg," "Mr. John Daring," "The Woman of the House," "The House of the Beautiful Hope."

So far, you find few "best sellers" in my list. To be frank about the matter I care very little or nothing for "The Man With the Iron Door," "Black Oxen," "The White Flag," "Butterfly," and some others to be found in the monthly lists of best sellers.

Henry Ford's endorsement of Coolidge was bound to bring in its train the usual after clap. Hiram Johnson openly charges that it was corruptly secured through some promise of concessions or favors relative to the Muscle Shoals controversy. That charge can be dismissed almost without discussion. The integrity of Coolidge dispenses with such a vicious accusation and places more firmly than ever the accuser in the class of demagogues to which he issues his appeal. The American people are tired of this kind of recrimination, a favorite line of attack and practically the only weapon Johnson ever used to demolish opposition.

Bryan's naive statement that Ford, "the millionaire who might have championed the common people" has gone over to the side of the reactionaries because the Mellon tax plan will add more units to the automobile magnate's bank balance is in the same class with Hiram's ravings.

Mere straining for an issue. Bryan and in fact all democrats from Crown Prince McAdoo down hoped for some split in the republican party that would carry them into power.

Republicans who are frittering away the opportunity of their lives at Washington must realize that unless all precedents are upset that it is Coolidge in 1924 or a democrat. The sooner they get behind the administration and show some inclination to relieve the people of burdensome taxes, the better. Voting with democrats to embarrass the administration is not strengthening the little clique who prate about progressive victories. They are digging their own political graves. The democrats, be it said to their credit, in large numbers refuse to join in the silly fight against Senator Cummins. The radicals by blocking his appointment as head of the Interstate Commerce committee cannot change any policy of this administration toward the railroads and why any democrat should seek responsibility in this instance is quite incomprehensible.

The people are showing signs of great impatience over the costly delays of putting into effect a plan that will enable business to get back to a solid basis and we mean by business not the so called "big" business but all kinds of industrial endeavor, whether of factory or of farm.

North Dakota's delegation at Washington does not do better in this crisis than to uphold the status quo and to relieve their constituents of some of the taxation which is slowing up development in this state. It means a boon and bonus to every man, woman and child in the United States.

Voters of North Dakota do whether Cummins heads that cause or not. North Dakota's delegation goes as far as a majority of the people of this state.

It would be a good move for voters of North Dakota delegation that they are more in state-manship action than in cheap political filibuster.

ADVENTURE OF THE TWIN

By Olive Roberts Barton

It was the middle of the night in Daddy Gander Land, and everybody was asleep or should have been.

It was perfectly evident that someone was asleep however, for such a sound as never heard.

But the Twins were so tired after their long journey in the magic dustpan, and after the excitement of Mister and Misses Sprats' visit, they didn't hear a thing. Each one slept on his funny little bed in the funny little Christmas tree house, as though life depended on it.

But it is queer how great big sounds won't waken us sometimes, and very little sounds do.

Something was squeaking!

Nancy opened her eyes and sat up in bed, and then Nick opened his eyes and sat up. It was very dark everywhere, but Daddy Gander, kind old fellow that he was, kept lanterns lit at all the street corners and in Daddy Gander Land, and one teeny front yard and in at one of the side windows of the Christmas-tree house.

Neither of the Twins said a word, but just listened and looked.

By and by they heard a rustle and another squeak and then they saw the waste-basket move. The first thing they knew the waste-basket fell over with a plof! And out fell a little gray mouse. He began to pull and tug at the string and by the dim light of the lantern, the Twins made out the lumpy form of a gingerbread-man.

Somebody had taken a bite out of the gingerbread-man. A whole spot was missing. Also one raisin eye! But the rest of him was all there and he was twice as big as the mouse. Mister Mouse was having a time of it.

Daddy Gander had stuck his head in after he had said goodnight. "You don't mind if I leave my magic dustpan here, do you, my dear?" he said. And he laid it carefully on the hearth right beside the waste-basket.

The mouse gave an extra hard tug, and the gingerbread-man gave a flop and landed right in the middle of the dustpan.

Instantly a wonderful thing happened. The gingerbread-man began to come alive. Then he stepped off the magic dustpan. He rather he hoped off, for one foot was gone. But then, his legs were baked together so one foot was as good as two, anyway. And the little mouse got scared and ran away.

"Now if I only had my other eye," he said merrily. "I'd be as good as new."

"Oh, I'll fix that!" cried Nancy. And she jumped out of bed and ran to the cupboard and got another raisin. "I'll stick it in with a little string," she said.

"Thank you," said the gingerbread-man. "And now do you and your brother want to help me to do something?"

"We sure do!" cried Nick, jumping out of bed and reaching for his clothes.

Many European Girls Earn Way Through School
BY MARIAN HALE
NEA Service Writer
New York, Dec. 28.—You may think your college days were strenuous, that they would have been glorious had the profits only eliminated those exams.
But even with exams and theses and such, you enjoyed heaven in comparison with the heroic efforts the European girl is making to get through college.
"Almost none of the women at the universities in central and eastern Europe has money enough these days to get through college without working her way," I am informed by Mrs. Robert Speer, head of the European Student Relief.
"Athletics are unheard of and quite superfluous because nearly every girl student supplements her college training with eight hours work a day in factories, restaurants or shops."
"Many girls come to college in the fall practically penniless, trusting to luck and their own efforts to pay for their lodging, food and books."
Anything to Earn
The ways in which they earn their tuition are surprising and novel.
One girl Mrs. Speer mentioned is making a brilliant record in law school while operating a pencil-making machine during the day.
Another girl, learning to be a surgeon, rings a church bell on Sundays in exchange for her dinner.
Still others scrub floors, do odd jobs on farms, mend or patch anything to carry them along from one day to the next.
"To be sure," Mrs. Speer states, "three years ago foreign universities would have gasped at the idea of their students doing such work. Then it was considered a disgrace for the intellectual classes to engage in manual labor." But how times have changed!
American Help
"The European Student Relief, supported to a large extent by self-supporting American students, really showed the way to these ambitious girls and have helped those who would otherwise have had to withdraw. But it has given help only to those who were willing to help themselves."
European students not only work throughout the college semester, but during every holiday. Vacation is safe to them only periods for earning a little more than their times.
"During the summer some of them earned almost enough to carry them through the first term—at least it would have if the currency had remained stationary. But this fall when they returned, elated at the idea of a little ahead, the value of currency took another sharp decline, almost wiping out their earnings."

In three years the Student Relief has aided 105,000 students in 17 different countries. They had hoped to withdraw this year, but with the unsettled conditions it seems necessary to continue the work. Otherwise thousands of students would have to forego college. And in Europe, Mrs. Speer has found, there is a distinction made economically between the student who finishes his course and the one who does not.

DIVORCE IS INNATE WITH HUMAN RACE
Justice Says Laws Are No Help in Curbing the Percentage of Divorces BLAME HASTY MARRIAGE
Says Both Man and Wife to Blame For Disruptions, Must Be More Considerate
Boulder, Colo., Dec. 28.—Divorce? We'll always have it, so long as human nature remains as it is. Thus sadly summarizes Justice Linda Lee after her five years' experience with estranged and quarreling couples.
Gray hairs and wrinkled face reveal the almost completed life of this woman who still refuses to succumb to age. Every day she climbs up the steps to her office of the second floor of the temporary city hall here, where she hears charges by police and plaintiffs and the pleas of prisoners in petty violations that come within the jurisdiction of her police court.
Since June, 1918, after her husband had been stricken with paralysis, and even after his death Justice Lee has listened to the tiffs and troubles of husbands and wives. She has married many, only to find some appeal to her later for settlement of their difficulties. So she concludes:
"Laws will help little in curbing the increasing percentage of divorces. Only a change in human nature will help."
And there's little chance for that, she admits.
"Most divorces are blameable to hasty marriages," she goes on, "but I can see little advantage in laws which require notice of a week or more before a marriage license can be obtained. The divorce evil isn't due so much to marriages on the spur of the moment. It is due mainly to marriages of young people, infatuated with each other, but who have not reached the stage where they are ready to assume the responsibilities of marriage. To such as these waiting a week or so before obtaining a marriage license would, if anything, only add to their fervor and determination."
"Many young wives tell me their husbands refuse to take them to dances or the theater, pleading they are too tired. The husbands tell me their wives care nothing for their home and say it is a physical impossibility for them to go to a dance or theater 'every night' and continue to work all day."
Compromise Needed
"As usual, both are at fault. Even if a husband is tired he should take his young wife to dances, the theater or parties a couple of times a week. A young girl needs some recreation. But she should also realize that her husband is tired after his day's work and be willing to stay home more than half the time."
"It is the same difficulty—neither is willing to assume the responsibilities of marriage."
"Occasionally, I come across a quarrel due to a desire for a career

THE BLUFFERS
by the wife. Marriage is a career in itself. If there is a baby, I can't understand a woman who loves her baby so little that she would permit anyone else to care for it, while she was at an office."
Their Bodies Are Safe
London—Unclaimed bodies of ex-service men, dying in guardians institutions while under treatment at the Health Ministry's cost, no longer will be sent to medical schools for dissection.
Since the beginning of the World War in 1914, the number of reigning houses in Europe has declined from forty-one to seventeen.

FARLEY WOULD QUIT SHIPPING BOARD PLACE

Announces His Intention After Holding a Conference With Coolidge

Washington, Dec. 28.—Edward F. Farley, chairman of the shipping board, announced after a conference with President Coolidge, that he had requested the executive to withdraw his nomination as a commissioner of the board now pending before the senate and that upon its withdrawal he would resign as chairman of the board, which office he now fills by recess appointment. Mr. Farley indicated that the president would accede to his request for withdrawal of his nomination, upon which an adverse report recently was voted by the senate commerce committee. The chairman said his formal resignation would be sent to the president within a few days.

The senate committee in voting adversely on the nomination of Mr. Farley, held that he was geographically unqualified for a shipping board commissionership inasmuch as the law provides that only one commissioner may be appointed from states bordering on the great lakes and that T. C. O'Connor of Buffalo, N. Y., a prior appointee, qualified from that section.

Mr. Farley in explaining his intention to resign, declared that if he were unqualified, as held by the senate committee, he was unqualified to continue to serve under the recess appointment given him last May by President Harding.

The action of Chairman Farley is expected to bring about a decision by the president soon with a new chairman of the board although the board will be able to continue to function with Commissioner O'Connor, now vice chairman, acting as chairman. White House officials declared today that the president had reached no decision regarding the chairmanship.

MURDERER OF NURSE HELD

Keen-eyed Employment Agent's Tip Leads to Arrest

New York, Dec. 28.—Captured on the tip of a keen-eyed employment agent, Frank Bonner, alias Collins and Carleton, claiming to be a war veteran, was alleged by the police to have confessed that he assaulted and murdered Miss Estelle Phillips in this city last October and that three weeks ago he attacked Mrs. May Mitchell, a nurse in a hospital in the Chestnut Hills section of Philadelphia, torturing her so that she is still an invalid.

Detectives were trying to connect their prisoner with the murder and mutilation of Pretty Ream Hoxie, 17, in New York, in February, 1920, and with similar crimes reported in a half dozen cities by a man answering the prisoner's general description.

"Maybe it was the war put such ideas into my head," Bonner was alleged to have declared at the end of a frank, unemotional confession. "I got wild like a maniac. Give me something to eat."

He is a stocky, powerful man, a club who, since the war has worked in many hospitals and on ocean passenger ships.

Father, a Church Worker
His father, he said, was a church worker in Montreal who later had a plumbing shop in Brooklyn. In his pockets were letters received today, one signed "Mother," and dated from Woodhaven, Long Island, and another from "Sister," who, Bonner said, was the wife of a Newark, N. J., bank employee. He said he had another sister in Clo, Mich.

Miss Phillips, a department store clerk, roomed in a house on West 97th street, next to Bonner when he was employed at a reconstruction hospital here.

About midnight on October 11, according to the prisoner's alleged confession, he forced entrance to the girl's room; attacked and strangled her, denuded and mutilated the body, and fled with his belongings after having left in the bathroom a handkerchief with a tell tale laundry mark. The body was found next day.

Bonner told of seeking refuge in Philadelphia, where he lived at a hotel and later worked in a girls school in Bryn Mawr, a suburb. Later he became acquainted with Mrs. Mitchell, employed at the home for consumptives in Chestnut Hill.

EIFFEL TOWER BUILDER DIES

Paris, Dec. 28.—Alexander Gustav Eiffel, the engineer who built the famous tower that bears his name, is dead. He was 91 years old.

4 HELD IN FARGO RELEASED

Fargo, Dec. 28.—George Wick, Victor Matson, Thomas Shipley and Elmer Johnson who were sentenced on November 28, 1922, to 15 years in the state prison for robbery in the first degree, were discharged from the custody of the Cass county sheriff today and the charges against them dismissed on motion of States Attorney H. F. Horner.

The men were granted a new trial last January but the state was unable to find any trace of Axel Nelson, the complaining witness, and it was impossible to try them without him.

Doomed Men Welcome Lethal Execution as End of Terror Suspense in Death House

LEFT TO RIGHT: GEE JON, THOMAS RUSSEL AND HUGHIE SING, WITH ARTIST'S CONCEPTION OF THE LETHAL CHAMBER IN WHICH THEY HAVE BEEN SENTENCED TO DIE, DRAWN FROM ACCURATE DESCRIPTION.

He does not die a death of shame. On a day of dark disgrace, Nor have a mouse about his neck, Nor a cloth about his face, Nor drop feet foremost through the floor.

Into an empty space. He does not wake at dawn to see Bread figures throng his room, The shivering chaplain robed in white, The sheriff stern with gloom, And the governor all in shiny black, With the yellow face of doom.

—Oscar Wilde.

By NEA Service
Carson City, Nev., Dec. 28.—Grotesque joy ruled the death house of the state penitentiary here.

For at last, after almost a year of suspense, three men bounded by walls of doom knew how they are to die. Sentenced as first execution experiments under Nevada's newly legislated lethal gas chamber enactment, fates of the trio have been repeatedly postponed by judicial interference.

Now, constitutionality of the death decreed for them has just been upheld by the United States Supreme Court.

Glad End Is Near
So it will be only a little while before Thomas Russel, Hughie Sing and Gee Jon are led into the hermetically-sealed chamber of concrete with its big window standing so forbiddingly in the prison yard.

Inside they will be trussed to a chair, while through a pipe, unseen death will creep upon them. Six witnesses permitted by law, will watch through the glass. Death will come silently. It will come quickly.

And for that the condemned men are glad. Hope of escape long since has left them.

Months of terror waiting for the end has shot their hair with white. Soon the agony of suspense will be over.

For they know definitely now how they are to die and when.

With oriental stoicism Hughie Sing and Gee Jon sigh relief.

Russel, their Mexican compatriot in death, is equally composed and as strangely grateful.

Death by whatever means all agree is bad enough. "But to wait for it and know not the hour or by what means society has planned to rid itself of us is cause for stark terror," Hughie, the high school lad, who mixed his education with long vengeance, says.

In death the trio greet the New Year.

Created Public Clamor
During the interim the country was clamoring against their doom, the three aged with horror wondering how Nevada would kill them.

2 CONCERNS WOULD LIGHT TOWN OF OAKES

Oakes, N. D., Dec. 28.—At a special meeting of the city council the petition of the Ottertail Power company with headquarters at Fergus Falls, Minn., for a franchise in Oakes was tabled for 30 days. Power transmission lines of the company now run as far as Cogswell, about 14 miles east of here, and the plan is to extend them into Oakes. Under the proposal submitted to the city, electricity for lighting would cost 15 cents a kilowatt hour as against the 18 cent rate now in force. The company would also construct a central heating plant to provide steam for the business houses now being supplied from the local power plant.

The Midwest Power company, which owns the present plant and franchise, is to appear before the council early in January with a counter proposition. More than a year ago the Midwest announced that a new power plant would be built here, and transmission lines rebuilt throughout the city to make possible a change from direct to alternating current.

Most Wait For Organ
London—He can enter a church only during services! Otherwise, he'll go to jail. The organ, a laborer, has a penchant for hymn books, it seems. He always wants to know in advance just what the congregation will sing on Sunday. But witnesses told the magistrate in Chichester Police Court that the fellow forgets to bring back the books. So the judge decreed the songster must confine his church going to the Sabbath Day.

On this basis objectors' argument that the condemned might be kept alive for weeks under excruciating torture. Prison authorities, however, declare that the right kind of gas will be used and that no unusual suffering will be inflicted. To all of which Hughie Sing and Gee Jon are most apathetic. Likewise is Thomas Russel, whose haste with a gun killed an Indian squaw, and brought about his present plight. Their long wait is over. They are to be rewarded with death. And they are happy.

DEPLORE FORD'S DECLINATION

St. Louis, Dec. 28.—The board of directors of the Missouri Ford for President club adopted a resolution deploring Henry Ford's action in declining to become a candidate for the presidency against President Coolidge. The resolution asserts Ford "deserts the cause of the people and aligns himself with the most reactionary thought in American politics," adding that hereafter the club will be known as the Missouri Progressive league.

At a given signal when the day of death comes the wires will be pulled simultaneously. But only one will open the con-trolling jet. This will prevent anyone from knowing who turned on the gas. Nevada amended its law govern-should the gas chamber be denied its prey.

Today in the prison preparations are being made to set the lethal machinery in motion. Three wires are being affixed to the valve which will lead the deadly vapor into the little concrete chamber.

DIDN'T GAIN WEALTH BY SAVING BITS

Made His Wealth by Dabbling in Real Estate in Spare Time

LIVES IN OLD WAY

Intends to Leave His Wealth to the Children, Does Not Care to Spend It

By JOSEPHINE VAN DE GRIFT
NEA Service Staff Writer

Whitehouse, N. D., Dec. 28.—You'll never get rich by saving. So says William J. Wisener, Queensbury, N. Y. farmer, who retired from service the other day worth more than $200,000.

Yet he never received a salary of more than $50 a week! And when he began he received just $15 weekly!

But Wisener didn't get that way by taking $2 out of his weekly pay envelope and piling it through the wicket at a courteous bank clerk. No, ma'am! When he wasn't rescuing lovely blondes from burning third-story windows and carrying litters down from telegraph poles, he was putting in time turning over little odd bits of real estate.

That's the reason that in addition to the $1,280 yearly pension which he will draw hereafter for his 20 years of service in the fire department, he will have an annual income of $9,000 from his $200,000 investments. He owns a 24-family apartment dealing numerous small houses and 350 lots.

The neighbors in this little town where he lives say they wouldn't be surprised if in another five years Bill turned out to be a millionaire. Right now he's only 45.

Use of Wealth.

I went over to call on Bill to ask him what he intended doing with all that money. Bill himself came on the porch to greet me. He had on a blue sweater and I could see he was getting a little bald.

"I suppose," I said, "that you're going to do quite a little thing with that $200,000?"

"Not at all," said Bill. "We've been here the same way for 20 years and we don't intend to change now. Hey, Kate, put on another pork chop! There's company come to dinner."

This is the story.

Here, according to Bill, was the way it happened:

He'd always wanted a little place in the country with chickens and so on, and one day, 20 years ago, he sold out his city store, paid up his debts, pocketed the $200 that remained and started looking around.

The place, when he found it, consisted of four-and-a-half acres and two houses and the owner wanted $5,500 for it. Bill borrowed the money, made a job in the area, and moved into one of the houses and the next month sold the other house at $500 profit.

He's been selling things at profit ever since. Along about 1916 Bill got an idea that there weren't enough three and four room apartments for young married couples and old couples. All the bankers laughed at him, but Bill had to go out of town to get the money. But the day those apartments were finished there were 50 families on the waiting list.

Well, not change.

"I suppose," I said to Bill, "that if you were to move into a new house or anything, maybe you'd put your money in a swell new motor car."

"Nope," said Bill. "Same old bus, 1915 model."

"Well, then, I suppose you have some pretty swell ones?"

"Well," said Bill, "I go fishing quite a bit and sometimes Kate and I go to the theater. But we sit in the balcony. Twenty-five dollars a week could cover everything we buy."

"But you've got an income of $9,000 a year," I said. "What're you going to do with it?"

"The children can have it," said Bill. "If I had a million I wouldn't do a bit different."

Bill's going to let the neighborhood kids have his firemen's helmet. But he's going to keep the boots. He says they'll be handy to go fishing in.

ENGLISH GIRL HAS ARABIAN NIGHT STORY

Young Writer Hunts Brigand to Give World a Book of Memoirs

EXPOSED TO DANGERS

By MILTON BRONNER
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

London, Dec. 28.—Here's a real tale of Arabian Nights' adventure that makes the stories of fiction seem tame.

Its heroine is a slender English woman, who was game enough to take a long chance, and its hero is Raisuli, the world's most famous bandit.

It began in a comfortable flat in Mayfair and ended in the heart of the Sahara Desert.

But let Mrs. Rosita Forbes, youthful explorer, adventurer and writer, tell her own story:

"Not long ago," says she, the writer of a funny column in one of the London papers ran a paragraph about Raisuli retiring from his brigandage, and added facetiously that now the bandit would doubtless write his memoirs.

"I suggested an idea. Why shouldn't I go to him and get his story?"

"I knew that no white person had ever entered certain of the oases of the Sahara. I knew that the journey to the lair of the Moroccan chief, soldier and brigand was replete with danger."

"That's why I went. Life without danger is little fun."

"Knowing that Raisuli subscribed to a newspaper clipping bureau to see what the world says about him, I had a little story put in the papers to the effect that I was going to Morocco on a secret mission. I figured that Raisuli's curiosity might be aroused."

"It was, for no sooner had I reached Tetuan than I was waited on by a brave Moor who was a kinsman of Raisuli. We became friends, and soon he wanted to know my secret mission. I told him the truth."

"By my head and by my eyes, I will try to help you," said the old man.

"Some days later he announced to me that if I was prepared to travel into the mountains alone, except for an escort of Raisuli's men, he would receive me."

"After a tedious trip, we reached Raisuli's village of Tazrut in Beni Areg. Here he has a really wonderful Moorish palace. It was night time when we arrived and the chief came to greet me. I have never seen his like."

"He is very tall and almost as broad as I am. He is 52 and with a huge beard dyed henna color. His household consists of two wives, both beautiful, nine daughters, three sons, 20 slave women and 15 little slave boys."

"When I greeted him, I said: 'I bring you the only gift worthy a brave man—a shimmering blade.'"

"To which he replied: 'By Allah, you should have been a man. Your words are as great as your courage.'"

"He lodged me not in his palace, but in the courtyard in a black and white camel-hair tent furnished only with a sleeping mattress and a camel's skin blanket."

"The next day and for ten days thereafter Raisuli came to me in the courtyard. Each day from six in the morning until three or four in the afternoon he would sit there telling me the story of his life."

"Being a very good Moslem he fasts three days a week and forgot that I was not voluntarily fasting. It was quite an ordeal but it was fascinating to take down notes on his career."

"I asked him about the time he kidnapped Ferdinand. You remember your President Roosevelt sent his famous cable message: 'Ferdinand alive or Raisuli dead.'"

"Of his adventure Raisuli said with twinkling eyes: 'Allah is good and great. He placed America far away from Morocco.'"

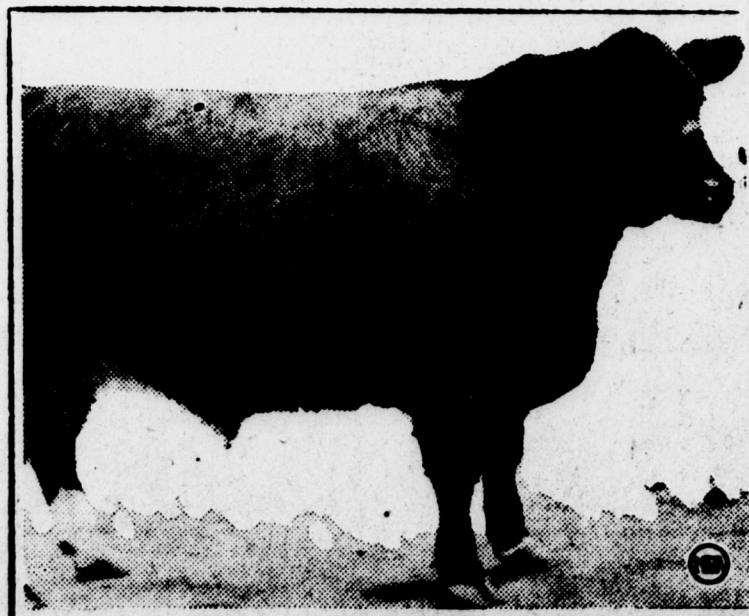

BANDIT'S BADINAGE

Some of Raisuli's sayings as recorded by Mrs. Rosita Forbes: Man is made for war and woman for his relaxation.

Daughters are a misfortune—why did Allah make them?

FARM MARKET IS SUCCESS WITH WOMEN

Make Discovery After Losing 53 Acres of Fruit Trees in Frost

EXPECT SMALL RETURN

Proved to be Popular With Many Who Called Constantly at Little Market.

By NEA Service

Toledo, O., Dec. 28.—Three years ago a heavy frost destroyed 53 acres of fruit trees on the farm of Mrs. John Suss and Mrs. Anna Hopf, sisters, near Lakeside, O.

This stroke of ill fortune, instead of proving their financial ruin, as they expected it would, really set them on the road to financial independence.

Forced to do some thing to keep the wolf from the door, the sisters began an experiment with a little farm market in their front yard. They used a small table to display the produce, and placed their children in charge.

Table to Shop

They expected a small patronage from passing motorists, but little did they dream they would attract the customers that soon started to flock to their roadside mart.

The result was so satisfactory that next season they built a ten-foot counter to replace the table and erected a large bulletin board.

At the end of the second year they had paid off all of the obligations against the farm. Now they have a regular shop known as "Pomona Shoppe," in keeping with the name of their farm, "Pomona Acres."

They net in a single summer as much profit as the average town grocery store makes in a year.

The experience of these sisters is typical of that of tens of thousands of farmers the country over. The automobile is responsible. It is reversing the old plan whereby the farmer brought his goods to the market. Now the consumer comes to the farmer.

The roadside market is making business men of the farmers and is dealing a stiff blow to the middleman. Thousands of them are making, in three or four months, incomes as large or larger than the annual salary of the average city dweller.

With the profit from these wayside marts, hundreds of farmers are paying their mortgages just as did Mrs. Suss and Mrs. Hopf. Other hundreds have bought automobiles or radio sets with the income and others have spent the money in travel.

The National Farm Market Bureau here recently sent out 21,592 questionnaires to farmers in Ohio, Michigan, Indiana, Illinois and Wisconsin. The bureau received 5481 replies from farmers who were running bona fide roadside markets.

Ninety-four per cent reported financial success, 41 per cent declaring they had made $2,000 or more in a season. Fourteen per cent had made more than $5,000.

Other answers revealed that women were conducting 21 per cent of the roadside stands and 24 per cent were all-year stands, selling some commodity in winter.

Travel on Profits.

Eighteen per cent declared they had raised farm mortgages from the profits; 2,214 purchased automobiles, 708 installed radio sets, 2,612 bought pianos, phonographs or other musical instruments and 312 spent the winter in Florida or California on their market profits.

On hundred per cent said their profit was greater this year than dealing through a middleman and 3,168 sold all their products through their own stands.

The average number of Customers started at 28.

As for the roadside stand reported 1,436 customers in a single day!

All of which proves that the roadside market is here to stay.

TRAPPING SHOWS INCREASE.

Grand Forks, N. D., Dec. 28.—Trapping appears to have become more popular in Grand Forks county this year than has been the case for several years past, 12 licenses having been issued by Martin Haugen, county auditor. In former years two or three usually have been the limit.

Worry Leads to Old Age, Says Dr. Held

Glands Are the Basis of the Method Leading Back to Eternal Youth

CHOLIN BRING AGE

By GEORGE BRITT
NEA Service Writer

Chicago, Dec. 28.—"Stop worrying and you won't have to get old."

So says Dr. William Held and proceeds to draw from the monkeys and chimpanzees in his laboratory an elixir of youth which may produce changes in life as sharp as the primordial transition from simian to human.

Rejuvenation is his promise, and he is ready confidently to apply his treatment to any ailment, either of age or disease. The only insurable and lethal ill, he says, is care.

Back to Youth

Glands are at the basis of the method. Dr. Held does not transplant them, however. He puts the patient's own glands to operating again at youthful efficiency.

The result is to give a full-time new lease on life, whereas it is claimed the vigor produced by the Steinhilber method is short lived.

Dr. Held, a specialist in gland treatment for 25 years, announces his theories with fresh assurance now after a summer in Europe where he studied and checked on researches made previously.

Cholin Brings Age

"What brings old age is not years but cholin," says he, pronouncing the strange word "kolin." Cholin is a toxin liberated in the body, increasing as time passes. It is the direct cause of arteriosclerosis or hardening of the arteries which accompanies senility. It glazes over the glands so they function under a growing handicap.

Obtained From Monkeys

"The fighting elements in the blood are trying to combat this cholin. From tests of the blood it is possible to tell which glands are suffering from attack."

"Having found out which elements in the human system need reinforcement, we induce a development of those elements in the monkeys. Then we withdraw the glandular fluid so produced, add extracts made from separated animal glands and inject in the patient. The cholin is split, the patient's own members go to work again and rejuvenation is accomplished."

"I won't say how long life will be extended. You wouldn't believe it. But it will make the traditional threescore years and ten look insignificant. And lengthened life will be a blessing, because vigor and health and increasing wisdom will accompany it."

Remarkable Cures Cited

It works already, Dr. Held declares. He cites the case of a woman of 50, suffering from high blood pressure, short breath and fainting spells.

After three months' decholinizing treatment the distressing symptoms disappeared and she joined a gymnasium class. A man of 91 took the treatment and went back to active work in his law office. In three cases, white hair began coming in at its old-time darker hue.
